FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Liquid Audio and Alliance Entertainment Announce Definitive Merger Agreement

Merger Creates Physical and Digital Entertainment Media Delivery Powerhouse

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. and CORAL SPRINGS, Fla., (June 13, 2002) Liquid Audio, Inc. (Nasdaq:LQID), a leading provider of technology, services and infrastructure for Internet media delivery, and privately-held Alliance Entertainment Corp., one of the largest home entertainment product distribution, fulfillment and infrastructure companies in the U.S., announced that they have signed a definitive merger agreement. Under the terms of the agreement, the stockholders of Alliance would receive approximately 46.2 million newly issued shares of Liquid Audio common stock, and Liquid Audio would assume all outstanding stock options and warrants to purchase shares of Alliance Entertainment. The current stockholders of Alliance will own approximately 67% of the new company's outstanding shares and 33% will be held by Liquid Audio stockholders. The proposed stock-for-stock transaction would be accounted for as a purchase and is intended to qualify as tax-free to the stockholders of Liquid Audio and Alliance Entertainment.

This merger will firmly position the combined company to become a leading provider of commerce solutions for entertainment media through physical and digital channels, said Eric Weisman, President and CEO, Alliance. For the fiscal year ended 2001 and 2000, Alliance generated approximately $687 million and $538 million in gross sales, respectively, and $21 million and $16 million in EBITDA, respectively. This represents 28% annual revenue growth, and 31% annual EBITDA growth. Combining the two businesses enables us to provide a unique solution for both content owners and retailers of home entertainment products as we see their digital and physical delivery needs converging. We believe that our core fulfillment business will serve as a stable cash flow generating platform, enabling us to continue deploying the Liquid Audio technology as the digital media delivery market matures.

We have been in discussions with numerous potential partners over the last year and believe that the combination with Alliance offers the most significant return of value to Liquid Audio stockholders, said Gerald Kearby, President and Chief Executive Officer of Liquid Audio.

Financially, the merger combines Alliance's significant EBITDA with Liquid Audio's strong cash position to form a well-capitalized market share leader in the $46 billion U.S. home entertainment market. Operationally, the merger combines Alliance's physical media distribution base of more than 5,000 retailers operating more than 25,000 physical and online stores, with Liquid Audio's leading portfolio of technology and intellectual property for digital media distribution and rights management.

Creating a Physical and Digital Entertainment Media Delivery Powerhouse

The merger of Alliance and Liquid Audio brings together two companies with similar core competencies and complementary strengths:

Alliance is a leading distributor of physical media products and accessories, including audio CDs, DVDs and VHS movies, and video games. Liquid Audio is a leading provider of software, services and infrastructure for the secure delivery of digital media, including music.

Both companies serve essentially the same entertainment media constituency groups—content owners and retailers. Alliance provides an array of commerce and fulfillment solutions to brick-and-mortar retailers, including Barnes & Noble, Transworld Entertainment, Warehouse Entertainment, Circuit City, Toys R Us and CVS as well as online retailers, including Barnes&Noble.com, CDNow, Amazon.com, CircuitCity.com, WherehouseMusic.com, TowerRecords.com, Univision.com and QVC.com. Today, more than 1,800 record labels and 17,000 artists use Liquid Audio's distribution solution to digitize, syndicate and account for the delivery of digital music to retail and content websites as well as consumer electronics manufacturers, including Amazon.com, Barnes & Noble, BestBuy, CDNow, Palm, and Sanyo.

Alliance has developed its e-commerce service solution, theStore24, to help traditional and non-traditional retailers sell and deliver a wide variety of physical entertainment media, including music, video and games through the Internet. Liquid Audio has developed its Liquid Store commerce solution to enable retail and OEM channel partners to distribute and sell digital music from their existing websites.

In physical fulfillment, Alliance commands a leading market share for national retail chains, independent retailers, consumer direct fulfillment services, and plug-in e-commerce engines for retail. In digital fulfillment, Liquid Audio commands leading market share for secure music files and online retail integration.

By combining both of these commerce solutions, and the companies' respective infrastructures and technologies, the new company expects to expand its customer base and revenue opportunities, delivering the industry's only end-to-end distribution infrastructure that can transport all types of media, in both physical and digital formats.

Merger Background

In 2001, Liquid Audio's board of directors retained Broadview International LLC to assist the company in a review of strategic alternatives. These alternatives included merger/acquisition, recapitalization, liquidation and going-private transactions. Liquid Audio's board of directors determined that the merger with Alliance was the best alternative to maximize short and long-term stockholder value.

The merger is subject to the approval of Liquid Audio's stockholders and the appropriate regulatory agencies as well as other customary closing conditions. In connection with the merger agreement, Liquid Audio's board of directors approved an amendment to its Stockholder Rights Agreement to make the provisions of the Stockholder Rights Agreement inapplicable to the transactions contemplated by the merger agreement. AEC Associates LLC, a limited liability company controlled by The Yucaipa Companies, is Alliance's controlling shareholder and has entered into a voting agreement to vote in favor of the merger. The transaction is expected to close in the Fall of 2002.

Due to this announcement, Liquid Audio is postponing its annual stockholder meeting scheduled for July 1, 2002. Immediately upon receipt of regulatory approvals, including SEC approvals, Liquid Audio will convene a special meeting of its stockholders to vote on the merger. Time, location and other details regarding this meeting will be communicated to stockholders at a later date.

At the closing of the merger, the board of Liquid Audio will be increased to nine positions, six of which will be designated by the Alliance shareholders and three of which will be designated by the existing Liquid Audio board of directors. Mr. Weisman will become President and Chief Executive Officer of the new company and Mr. Kearby will remain Chief Executive Officer of Liquid Audio and lead the company's digital businesses.
