Reasons for the Above Revisions

Trend Micro amended its earning projections due to an unexpected increase in demand for antivirus products in Japan and Europe. In Japan revenue growth from desktop products was stronger than expected, and outside Japan the weak yen improved revenue.

Non-consolidated net sales were higher than expected because the royalty rates charged to subsidiaries, which we had anticipated decreasing, remained constant. The company will announce financial results for the fiscal year 2001 on February 7, 2002.
