Pentwater Capital Management, LP (Pentwater LP), together with the other Participants named herein, filing materials contained in this Schedule 14A with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) in connection with the solicitation of proxies for the election of its slate of director nominees at the 2011 annual meeting of stockholders of Leap Wireless International, Inc. (the 2011 Annual Meeting). Pentwater LP has not yet filed a proxy statement with the SEC with regard to the 2011 Annual Meeting. On March 10, 2011, Pentwater LP issued the following release:

Pentwater Capital Management Submits Letter to Board of Directors of Leap Wireless

CHICAGO (BUSINESS WIRE) Pentwater Capital Management today submitted a letter to the Board of Directors of Leap Wireless.

Full text of the letter can be found below.

March 10, 2011

The Board of Directors
Leap Wireless International, Inc.
5887 Copley Drive
San Diego, CA 92111

Dear Members of the Board of Directors,

Pentwater Capital Management is the fifth largest institutional shareholder of Leap Wireless, owning just under 5% of the shares outstanding. We are writing to you to inform you of our decision to nominate three directors for the upcoming annual meeting of shareholders. Pentwater believes that Leap's share price is significantly undervalued and that the addition of three new independent board members will both enhance shareholder representation on Leap's board and better align the Board with the interests of Leap's shareholders.

Over the last several years, we have watched Leap engage in a series of mistakes and missteps that have resulted in the destruction of shareholder value. Beginning in 2007, Leap made the incorrect decision to turn away MetroPCS's proposal to merge with Leap and pay each Leap shareholder 2.75 shares of MetroPCS. At the time, MetroPCS estimated that $2.5 billion of synergies could be realized from the combination. In addition, the combined company would have had a national footprint encompassing the top 20 metropolitan areas in the U.S. Had Leap's Board of Directors agreed to the combination and had even half of the synergies been realized, we believe that Leap's stock would be trading 280% higher than its market value today rather than down more than 80% from the time of MetroPCS's offer in 2007.

In addition to the poor strategic decisions made by the Board, Leap has made many incorrect operational decisions that have led to a destruction of shareholder value. Beginning in 2008, Leap decided to emphasize Cricket Broadband service plans to cover all of its markets and spent heavily to do so. This was done despite warnings that the high network utilization from such customers would actually produce negative free cash flow. In 2008 and 2009 Leap added 465,800 Broadband subscribers. In 2010, Leap realized its faulty strategy and began to deemphasize broadband usage on its network, losing 115,000 Broadband subscribers in the last three quarters of 2010.

In 2010, Leap continued its missteps in several ways. First, Leap failed to adopt a simplified all-in pricing model of the type that was being adopted by its competitors in late 2009 and early 2010. Having realized its error, Leap finally adopted a new model in August 2010. Second, Leap mismanaged its handset inventory so consumers did not have the ability to purchase desirable handsets at Leap retail outlets. These operational and strategic errors resulted in Leap having a net loss of 245,000 voice subscribers in the second and third quarters of 2010 while MetroPCS added 526,258 subscribers and Sprint/Boost added 644,000 retail pre-paid subscribers over that same period of time.

In addition, Leap has mismanaged its cost structure relative to its competitors. Leap's SG&A costs as a percentage of its service revenue have averaged 33.7% over the past four years. In contrast, MetroPCS's SG&A costs as a percentage of its service revenue have averaged 17.9% over the same period of time. Leap had 4,362 full-time employees and 5.5 million subscribers as of December 31, 2010. MetroPCS had substantially more subscribers (8.2 million) with substantially fewer employees (3,600 employees) as of the same date. Improving Leap's bloated cost structure would result in substantial improvement in shareholder value. To illustrate, if Leap were given the same multiple as MetroPCS on an EV/subscriber basis or EV/service revenue basis, Leap's shares would trade for more than $34 per share, or 170% more than the current market value.

Finally, we believe that the Board's decision in September of last year to implement a poison pill to limit individual shareholder ownership to less than 5% of Leap's outstanding shares entrenches management and stifles shareholder voice. We believe that one of the reasons that the poison pill was put in place was to entrench the positions of the current Board of Directors, thereby limiting their accountability to shareholders. This, combined with the Chairman's control of 19.85% of Leap's shares outstanding, creates a structure that minimizes shareholder representation and largely insulates the Board from constructive shareholder critique.

Pentwater's nominees include two former CEOs of multi-billion dollar telecommunications companies as well as the CEO of Pentwater Capital. We believe our nominees can work with the existing Board to unlock substantial shareholder value at Leap and help erase some of the 80% loss in share value that shareholders have had to endure since 2007.

Regards,

Pentwater Capital Management
