Explanatory Note

We said in our March 26, 2012 proxy statement that brokers and nominees have discretionary authority to vote shares without instruction from the beneficial owner only for matters considered routine. Our proxy statement said our proposal to amend our Articles of Incorporation to increase our authorized Common Stock would not be routine. The New York Stock Exchange has, however, informed us that its member organizations may vote proxies on that proposal discretionarily. Hence, a broker or nominee who holds shares for a beneficial owner will have authority to vote shares even without instructions from the beneficial owner.
