RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C., October 19, 2007 Smart Online, Inc. (OTCBB: SOLN), a leading provider of private-label Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) applications for the small business market, today announced that David Colburn, president and CEO of Smart Online, Inc., has accepted the position of Chairman of its board of directors replacing Jeffrey LeRose who has resigned from the board citing his need to give his full attention to his current personal and business affairs.

I am pleased the board has decided to trust me to lead it to the next level. This is a bittersweet moment for me to lose a valued board member who has served Smart Online through challenging times over the last two years, said Mr. Colburn. We appreciate Jeff's contributions, leadership and his independent perspective at crucial times for the company.

Smart Online has afforded me the ability to further my board experience and further appreciate the importance of independence, said Jeffrey LeRose. I feel the board is well positioned for the future to enable my departure at this time. I have enjoyed serving as the Chairman of the board for Smart Online and will continue to support the company in its growth efforts.

Dave and the Board

Please accept this letter as my resignation from the Board of Directors of Smart Online effective at your pleasure.

I believe I have done my best to serve the shareholders, and I believe that under my guidance the company has made it through some difficult times.

The time commitment required to get us through these difficult times has caused me to neglect some of the aspects of my own company, but I now believe that Smart Online is very well positioned and will continue to prosper going forward. Therefore my departure at this time will not prevent the company from achieving its goals.

I appreciate the Board's generosity in vesting my outstanding shares for this year and continuing to pay my retainer through June of 2008.

I strongly believe in Smart Online, its restructured management, and the great future the company has as a leader in the SaaS arena for small business.

I will miss all of the team and will be available for any consultations you may wish in the future.

Best Regards,
Jeff
