New authorized capital

The "Authorized Capital 2001/I" already approved by the Annual General Meeting in 2001 was used fully in the current capital increase. The instrument of authorized unissued capital gives companies the option of issuing new shares without delay and independently of the annual cycle of the annual general meeting. The company also requires this scope if there is no current need for a capital increase. The shareholders therefore decided to approve the creation of new Authorized Capital 2003/II with a total value of up to 300 million euros. The Annual General Meeting also voted to renew the Authorized Capital 1998, that is due to expire on July 7, 2003. The authorized capital serves to protect against dilution caused by bonds carrying conversion or option rights that might be issued in the future.

Those eligible to vote have also voted in favor of renewing authorizations to acquire company shares for trading and other purposes. This in particular allows Dresdner Bank AG, which is part of the Allianz Group, to trade in Allianz shares.

Additional changes to the Articles of Association

The shareholders also voted in favor of the new regulation governing remuneration for members of the Supervisory Board. These implement the appropriate recommendations of the German Corporate Governance Codex. The shareholders also decided for the additional changes to the Articles of Association, which adapt them to new German legislation, especially the Transparency and Publicity Law, and clarify existing provisions. Finally, a vote was passed in favor of the control and profit transfer agreements between Allianz AG and various controlled enterprises. The Annual General Meeting approved all the resolutions by a majority of more than 90 percent, almost 40 percent of the equity capital being represented. The Annual General Meeting rejected counterproposals submitted by individual shareholders by a large majority.
