Item 8.01 Other Events.

As discussed in the Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q of Prudential Financial, Inc. (the Company) for the three months ended June 30, 2005, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has been conducting an examination of the Company's consolidated federal income tax returns for the 1997 to 2001 periods. The Company has been advised that the Joint Committee on Taxation of the United States Congress has completed its review of the issues relating to the periods covered by the IRS examination and that the tax changes shown on the related IRS examination report are being processed by the IRS for refund or credit. Accordingly, substantially all issues relating to the periods covered by the IRS examination have been resolved.

Reflecting the resolution of these issues, the Company's consolidated statement of financial position at September 30, 2005 will include a decrease in income taxes payable, and the Company's consolidated statements of operations for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2005 will include a favorable adjustment to income tax expense and net income, of approximately $720 million. The favorable adjustment to income tax expense and net income will not affect adjusted operating income of the Company's Financial Services Businesses, although the adjustment includes a reversal, in the third quarter of 2005, of approximately $28 million of interest accrued previously during 2005 on income tax liabilities which will benefit adjusted operating income, after giving effect to income taxes, for the three months ended September 30, 2005 by that amount.

Adjusted operating income is the financial measure that the Company uses to analyze the operations of each segment in managing its Financial Services Businesses. Adjusted operating income differs from, and should not be viewed as a substitute for, income from continuing operations before income taxes or net income determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP), and the Company's definition of adjusted operating income may differ from that used by other companies. For additional information about adjusted operating income and the comparable GAAP measure, please refer to the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2004 and Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended June 30, 2005.
