An Update for Columbia's Valued Customers

June 2, 2016

Hi, my name is Alex Pourbaix, and I'm the Chief Operating Officer at TransCanada Corporation (TransCanada). I wanted to take this opportunity to introduce our company to you.

As you may already be aware:

TransCanada is proud to be one of North America's leading natural gas transportation companies, a position we've built over the past 65 years. In the United States, we operate about 16,000 miles of natural gas pipelines, along with liquids pipelines and electric generation assets.

Our company safely and reliably transports more than 20 percent of the natural gas used in North America every day through our 41,300-mile network of pipelines.

We're also one of the continent's largest providers of gas storage and related services with 368 billion cubic feet of storage capacity (with significant capacity operating in Michigan).

TransCanada's been able to build a successful business because we value our customers and seek out opportunities to create and maintain strong, long-term business relationships with them. We also work hard to be a good neighbor in the communities where we live and work.

On March 17, 2016, TransCanada and Columbia Pipeline Group (Columbia) reached an agreement that will see the Columbia entities become wholly-owned subsidiaries of TransCanada. The successful completion of this proposed transaction will combine TransCanada's strong balance sheet and experience building large infrastructure projects with Columbia's significant transportation and storage assets and their portfolio of growth opportunities. This proposed transaction creates one of North America's largest regulated natural gas transmission businesses that connects the continent's most prolific natural gas supply basins to its most attractive markets.

Both companies have proven operating capabilities and industry leading safety records. Maintaining competitively priced, safe and reliable operations of the Columbia system is a key priority for everyone. As such, you won't see significant impacts to the day-to-day business of Columbia in the near term. Over time, we'll be integrating Columbia under the TransCanada umbrella and we'll be pleased to provide you more detailed information as it becomes available.

The proposed transaction is proceeding favorably. In May 2016, we completed all major regulatory hurdles required to proceed with our intended acquisition of Columbia Pipeline Group. The final significant milestone is anticipated to be reached on June 22, 2016, when Columbia shareholders will vote to approve the proposed transaction. Assuming a positive outcome from this vote, the two companies anticipate the closing of the transaction will be effective by July 1, 2016.

Prior to this final milestone, our companies are required to continue operating as independent entities. This has limited our ability to engage directly with you to the extent we wish we could. We appreciate your patience and understanding. I'd like to assure you that we want to maintain a strong relationship with all of Columbia's customers and are eager to more fully introduce TransCanada to you as soon as the transaction concludes.

I look forward to working with you in the future.

Sincerely,

/s/Alex Pourbaix
