We are joining forces to create the future of communication.

Together, we will be more innovative.

The changes in the world of telecommunications and rapid advances in technologies are pressing companies to make important investments in R&D to maintain their leadership. The partnership between Alcatel and Lucent will allow us to create the largest Research Lab in the world with more than 26,000 people entirely dedicated to innovation. Combining the prestigious Bell Labs and Alcatel R&D Labs, whose engineers gave us the most advanced inventions of the century, the Group will allocate more than E2.4 billion* per year to create tomorrow's technologies and allow the company to better tailor its response to the clients' needs and expectations. With a tenfold increase in innovation capabilities and a reinforced leadership position (fixed, mobile, and Internet technologies), the company will be in the best position to respond to the future challenge: the fixed-mobile convergence.
