Winter Storms Projected Losses for National Security Group, Inc.

Elba, Alabama (February 28, 2008) The National Security Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: NSEC)... Winter storms projected losses for National Security Group, Inc.

Severe weather in late January and early February contributed to tornado outbreaks resulting in reported losses of over $1.1 million in insured losses incurred by Company subsidiaries National Security Fire and Casualty Company and Omega One Insurance Company.

Management maintains a comprehensive risk management program to mitigate the impact of catastrophic events. A primary component of the risk management program is catastrophe reinsurance, which limits losses to the Company as a result of catastrophic events above the Company s retention, currently $3.5 million. As Catastrophes 26, 27 and 29 did not exceed the Company s retention (individually or in total) these losses will have a material impact on the Company s first quarter 2008 results of operations.

Based on preliminary estimates, first quarter net income will be reduced by $792 thousand, or a reduction in earnings per share as a result of this event is expected to be $0.32 per share. The projected impact on earnings is based on total Company insured losses of $1.2 million on a pre-tax basis.

Loss estimates were derived by an evaluation of reported claims which is the best information available to management at this time. The estimates could be materially affected by, among other things, the number of insureds impacted by the tornados, the amount and timing of losses actually incurred and reported by insureds, and the preliminary nature of current estimates.

While a material impact on earnings cannot be avoided, our ability to continue operations, serve our policyholders and strive to provide long-term value to our stockholders will not be affected.

Information about forward-looking statements

Any statement contained in this report which is not a historical fact, or which might otherwise be considered an opinion or projection concerning the Company or its business, whether expressed or implied, is meant as and should be considered a forward-looking statement as that term is defined in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Forward-looking statements are based on assumptions and opinions concerning a variety of known and unknown risks, including but not limited to changes in market conditions, natural disasters and other catastrophic events, increased competition, changes in availability and cost of reinsurance, changes in governmental regulations, technological changes, political and legal contingencies and general economic conditions, as well as other risks and uncertainties more completely described in the Company s filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission. If any of these assumptions or opinions proves incorrect, any forward-looking statements made on the basis of such assumptions or opinions may also prove materially incorrect in one or more respects and may cause future results to differ materially from those contemplated, projected, estimated or budgeted in such forward-looking statements.
