The Benchmark Index includes depository receipts, which are quoted and traded in U.S. dollars on The New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), The NYSE Amex and The NASDAQ Stock Market (NASDAQ). Each depository receipt generally represents an ownership interest in shares (or fractions of a share) of an underlying stock that may be quoted and traded in its local jurisdiction in a foreign currency. Selected Risk Considerations

Investing in the RBS ETNs involves a number of risks. The RBS ETNs involve risks not associated with an investment in conventional debt securities. Credit risk of RBS plc and RBS Group: The RBS ETNs are unsecured and unsubordinated obligations not guaranteed by RBS Group. You are dependent on RBS plc's ability to pay all amounts due on the RBS ETNs, and therefore risk of RBS plc and to changes in the market's view of RBS plc's creditworthiness. In addition, because the RBS ETNs are also dependent on the credit risk of RBS Group in the event that RBS plc fails to make any payment or delivery required. Issuer redemption: RBS plc has the right to redeem or "call" the RBS ETNs, in whole but not in part, at any time from the initial settlement date to and including 4/15/2042. In addition, the implementation of the RBS Retail Investments described below under "Recent Developments") increases the likelihood of our calling the RBS ETNs prior to maturity. Strategy Risk: The RBS Trendpilot[] ETN uses a trend-following strategy that seeks to capitalize on market movements based on its closing level relative to its 100-Index business day moving average. Movements in the Cash Rate may have a material and adverse impact on the RBS Trendpilot[] ETN Index's performance. There is no assurance that it will be successful or that it will outperform the Benchmark Index or the Cash Rate. Market Risk: The return on the RBS ETNs will depend on the performance of the Index (which in turn tracks the Benchmark Index and the Cash Rate) and other market conditions. Because the Benchmark Index tracks only the performance of the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), it is subject to risks including emerging market risks, concentration risk, government policy, tax, or other regulatory policies which will adversely affect the stock prices of companies based in the PRC. Securities tracked by the Benchmark Index include depository receipts, there are risks relating to foreign exchange and potential fluctuations in the depository receipts and their underlying stocks. A trading market for the RBS ETNs may not develop: Although the RBS ETNs are listed on NYSE Arca, there is no assurance that the listing will be maintained or that a secondary market will develop. RBS plc is not required to maintain any listing. No Interest Payments: You will not receive any interest payments on the RBS ETNs. Restrictions on your ability to offer RBS ETNs for repurchase by us: You must offer at least 20,000 RBS ETNs for repurchase and satisfy the other requirements described in the applicable pricing supplement for your repurchase offer to be eligible. Actual trading price or market price may vary significantly from indicative value and daily redemption value. Redemption is meant to approximate the intrinsic economic value of the RBS ETNs from time to time. Any payment on the RBS ETNs for repurchase or
