DESCRIPTION OF BUSINESS

Bank One Corporation (Bank One or the Corporation) is a financial holding company (FHC) and a multibank bank holding company registered under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 (the BHC Act), and is headquartered in Chicago, Illinois. Bank One was incorporated in Delaware in 1998, to effect the merger of Banc One Corporation and First Chicago NBD Corporation. On January 14, 2004, J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. and Bank One entered into an agreement to merge Bank One into J.P. Morgan Chase. Bank One and J.P. Morgan Chase expect to complete the transaction in mid-2004.

Bank One provides domestic retail banking, finance and credit card services; worldwide commercial banking services; and trust and investment management services. Bank One operates banking offices in Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin and in certain international markets. Bank One also engages in other businesses related to banking and finance, including credit card and merchant processing, consumer and education finance, real estate-secured lending and servicing, insurance, venture capital, investment and merchant banking, trust, brokerage, investment management, leasing, community development and data processing. These activities are conducted through bank subsidiaries and nonbank subsidiaries. Prior to 2001, the bank subsidiaries were operated under separate national or state charters in the 14 states in which the banking offices are located. Since 2001, most of the bank subsidiaries have been consolidated into Bank One, National Association, headquartered in Chicago, Illinois, and Bank One, National Association, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio.

Available Information: Bank One's Internet address is www.bankone.com. Electronic copies of Bank One's annual report on Form 10-K, quarterly reports on Form 10-Q and current reports on Form 8-K are available free of charge by visiting www.bankone.com (Investor Relations page). These reports are posted as soon as reasonably practicable after they are electronically filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Bank One has posted its Corporate Governance Principles, its Code of Ethics for directors, officers and employees, and the charters of the Audit and Risk Management, Corporate Governance and Nominating, and Compensation and Organization committees of the Board of Directors on its Web site at www.bankone.com (Investor Relations page). Bank One has adopted a Code of Ethics for Senior Financial Officers that covers the principal executive officer, the principal financial officer and the principal accounting officer. This Code is also posted at www.bankone.com (Investor Relations page); any amendments to or waivers from the Code will be posted at the same site.

EMPLOYEES

As of December 31, 2003, Bank One and its subsidiaries had 71,196 full time and part time employees with benefits. This figure does not include employees on long-term disability.

COMPETITION

Bank One and its subsidiaries face active competition in all of their principal activities, not only from other financial holding companies and commercial banks, but also from savings and loan associations, credit unions, finance companies, mortgage companies, leasing companies, insurance companies, mutual funds, securities brokers and dealers, other domestic and foreign financial institutions, and various nonfinancial institutions.

MONETARY POLICY AND ECONOMIC CONTROLS

The earnings of Bank One's bank subsidiaries (the Banks), and therefore the earnings of Bank One, are affected by the policies of regulatory authorities, including the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the Federal Reserve Board). An important function of the Federal Reserve Board is to promote orderly economic growth by influencing interest rates and the supply of money and credit. Among the methods that have been used to achieve this objective are open market operations in United States government securities, changes in the discount rate for member bank borrowings and changes in reserve requirements against bank deposits. These methods are used in varying combinations to influence overall growth and distribution of bank loans, investments and deposits, interest rates on loans and securities, and rates paid for deposits.

Edgar Filing: BANK ONE CORP - Form 10-K

The effects of the various Federal Reserve Board policies on the future business and earnings of Bank One cannot be predicted. Other economic controls also have affected Bank One's operations in the past. Bank One cannot predict the nature or extent of any effects that possible future governmental controls or legislation might have on its business and earnings.

SUPERVISION AND REGULATION

GENERAL

As a bank holding company, Bank One is regulated under the BHC Act, and is subject to inspection, examination and supervision by the Federal Reserve Board.

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act of 1999 (the GLB Act) eliminated many of the restrictions placed on the activities of bank holding companies that become FHCs. Bank One became a FHC in August 2001. Among other things, the GLB Act repealed certain Glass-Steagall Act restrictions on affiliations between banks and securities firms, and amended the BHC Act to permit bank holding companies that are FHCs to engage in activities, and acquire companies engaged in activities, that are: financial in nature (including insurance underwriting, insurance company portfolio investment, financial advisory, securities underwriting, dealing and market-making, and merchant banking activities); incidental to financial activities; or complementary to financial activities if the Federal Reserve Board determines that they pose no substantial risk to the safety or soundness of depository institutions or the financial system in general. The GLB Act also permits national banks, under certain circumstances, to engage through special financial subsidiaries in the financial and other incidental activities authorized for FHCs.

LIABILITY FOR BANK SUBSIDIARIES

The Federal Reserve Board requires a bank holding company to act as a source of financial and managerial strength to each of its subsidiary banks and to maintain resources adequate to support each subsidiary bank. In addition, the National Bank Act permits the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) to order the pro rata assessment of shareholders of a national bank whose capital has become impaired. If a shareholder fails to pay such an assessment, the OCC can order the sale of the shareholder's stock to cover the deficiency. In the event of a bank holding company's bankruptcy, any commitment by the bank holding company to a federal bank regulatory agency to maintain the capital of a subsidiary bank would be assumed by the bankruptcy trustee and entitled to priority of payment.

Under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) can hold any FDIC-insured depository institution liable for any loss the FDIC incurs, or reasonably expects to incur, in connection with (1) the default of any commonly controlled FDIC-insured depository institution or (2) any assistance provided by the FDIC to any commonly controlled depository institution that is in danger of default. Default is defined generally as the appointment of a conservator or receiver and in danger of default is defined generally as the existence of certain conditions indicating that a default is likely to occur absent regulatory assistance. All of the Banks are FDIC-insured depository institutions.

CAPITAL REQUIREMENTS

Bank One is subject to capital requirements and guidelines imposed on bank holding companies by the Federal Reserve Board. The OCC, the FDIC and the Federal Reserve Board impose similar requirements on the Banks within their respective jurisdictions. These capital requirements establish higher capital standards for banks and bank holding companies that assume greater risks. For this purpose, a bank holding company's or bank's assets and certain off-balance sheet commitments are assigned to four risk categories, each weighted differently based on credit risk. Total capital, in turn, is divided into three tiers:

core (Tier 1) capital, which includes common equity, certain qualifying cumulative and noncumulative perpetual preferred stock and related surplus, and minority interests in equity accounts of consolidated subsidiaries;

supplementary (Tier 2) capital, which includes perpetual preferred stock and related surplus not meeting the Tier 1 definition, hybrid capital instruments, perpetual debt and mandatory convertible securities, subordinated debt, intermediate-term preferred stock, and allowances for loan and lease losses; and market risk (Tier 3) capital, which includes qualifying unsecured subordinated debt.

Goodwill, certain intangible assets and certain other assets must be deducted in calculating the sum of the core capital elements.

Bank One, like other bank holding companies, is required to maintain Tier 1 and total capital equal to at least 4% and 8%, respectively, of its total risk-weighted assets. At December 31, 2003, Bank One met both requirements, with Tier 1 and total capital equal to 10.0% and 13.7%, respectively, of its total risk-weighted assets. Each of the Banks was in compliance with its applicable minimum capital requirement at December 31, 2003.

The Federal Reserve Board, the FDIC and the OCC have incorporated market and interest rate risk components into their risk-based capital standards. Under these market risk requirements, capital is allocated to support the amount of market risk related to a financial institution's ongoing trading activities.

The Federal Reserve Board also requires a minimum leverage ratio (Tier 1 capital to adjusted average assets) of 3% for bank holding companies that have the highest regulatory rating or have implemented the risk-based capital measures for market risk, or 4% for holding companies that do not meet either of these requirements. Each of the Banks is subject to similar requirements adopted by the applicable federal regulatory agency. At December 31, 2003, Bank One's leverage ratio was 8.8%, and each of the Banks was in compliance with its applicable leverage ratio requirement.

While the federal banking regulators may set capital requirements higher than the minimums noted above if circumstances warrant it, no federal banking regulator has imposed any such special capital requirement on Bank One or the Banks.

Failure to meet capital requirements could subject a bank to a variety of enforcement remedies, including the termination of deposit insurance by the FDIC, and to certain restrictions on its business, which are described below.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 (FDICIA), among other things, identifies five capital categories (from well capitalized to critically undercapitalized) for insured depository institutions, and requires the respective federal bank regulatory agencies to take prompt corrective action for insured depository institutions that do not meet minimum capital requirements within these categories.

Failure to meet the capital guidelines could subject a depository institution to capital-raising requirements. An undercapitalized depository institution must develop a capital restoration plan, and its parent holding company must guarantee the bank's compliance with the plan. In the event of the bankruptcy of the parent holding company, this guarantee would take priority over the parent's general unsecured creditors. In addition, FDICIA requires the federal bank regulatory agencies to prescribe certain noncapital standards for safety and soundness relating generally to operations and management, asset quality and executive compensation, and it permits regulatory action against a financial institution that does not meet these standards.

As of December 31, 2003, each Bank was well capitalized . It should be noted, however, that a Bank's capital category is determined solely for the purpose of applying the federal banking agencies' prompt corrective action regulations; the capital category may not constitute an accurate representation of a Bank's overall financial condition or prospects.

THE BANKS

The Banks are national banking associations and, as such, are subject to regulation primarily by the OCC and, secondarily, by the FDIC and the Federal Reserve Board. The Banks' operations in other countries are subject to various restrictions imposed by the laws of those countries.

Federal law limits the amount of dividends the Banks can pay to Bank One without regulatory approval. In addition, federal bank regulatory agencies have authority to prohibit the Banks from engaging in unsafe or unsound practices in conducting their business. The payment of dividends, depending upon the financial condition of the bank in question, could be deemed to constitute an unsafe or unsound practice.

DEPOSITOR PREFERENCE STATUTE

Federal law provides that deposits and certain claims for administrative expenses and employee compensation against an insured depository institution are afforded a priority over other general unsecured claims against such institution, including federal funds and letters of credit, in the liquidation or other resolution of the institution by any receiver.

OTHER

Bank One's nonbank subsidiaries and banking-related business units are subject to regulation by various state and federal regulatory agencies and self-regulatory organizations. Activities subject to such regulation include investment management, investment advisory services, commodities and securities brokerage, insurance services and products, and securities dealing.

PROPERTIES

Bank One and its subsidiaries occupy more than 2,300 owned or leased domestic properties, including banking centers, operations facilities and commercial banking offices. In addition, Bank One has 14 foreign offices in leased premises in major cities in Canada, Mexico, Europe, Asia and Australia.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Annual Report on Form 10-K contains certain forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. In addition, Bank One may make or approve certain statements in future filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission), in press releases, and in oral and written statements made by or with Bank One's approval that are not statements of historical fact and may constitute forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements may relate to, without limitation, Bank One's financial condition, results of operations, plans, objectives, future performance or business.

Forward-looking statements can be identified by the fact that they do not relate strictly to historical or current facts. Words such as believes, anticipates, expects, intends, plans, estimates, targeted and similar expressions, and future or conditional verbs such as will, would, or may are intended to identify forward-looking statements but are not the only means to identify these statements.

Forward-looking statements involve risks and uncertainties. Actual conditions, events or results may differ materially from those contemplated by a forward-looking statement. Factors that could cause this difference many of which are beyond Bank One's control include the following, without limitation:

Local, regional and international business or economic conditions may differ from those expected.

The effects of and changes in trade, monetary and fiscal policies and laws, including the Federal Reserve Board's interest rate policies, may adversely affect Bank One's business.

The timely development and acceptance of new products and services may be different than anticipated.

Technological changes instituted by Bank One and by persons who may affect Bank One's business may be more difficult to accomplish or more expensive than anticipated or may have unforeseen consequences.

Acquisitions and integration of acquired businesses may be more difficult or expensive than expected.

The ability to increase market share and control expenses may be more difficult than anticipated.

Competitive pressures among financial services companies may increase significantly.

Edgar Filing: BANK ONE CORP - Form 10-K

Changes in laws and regulations (including laws and regulations concerning taxes, banking, securities and insurance) may adversely affect Bank One or its business.

Edgar Filing: BANK ONE CORP - Form 10-K

Changes in accounting policies and practices, as may be adopted by regulatory agencies, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board and the Financial Accounting Standards Board, may affect expected financial reporting.

The costs, effects and outcomes of litigation may adversely affect Bank One or its business.

Bank One may not manage the risks involved in the foregoing as well as anticipated.

Forward-looking statements speak only as of the date they are made. Bank One undertakes no obligation to update any forward-looking statement to reflect subsequent circumstances or events.

DISCLOSURE CONTROLS AND INTERNAL CONTROLS

Bank One's management evaluated its disclosure controls and procedures as of December 31, 2003. Based on this evaluation, the Principal Executive Officer and Principal Financial Officer each concludes that as of December 31, 2003, Bank One maintained effective disclosure controls and procedures in all material respects, including those to ensure that information required to be disclosed in reports filed or submitted under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 is recorded, processed, summarized and reported, within the time periods specified in the Commission's rules and forms, and is accumulated and communicated to management, including the Principal Executive Officer and the Principal Financial Officer, as appropriate to allow for timely decisions regarding required disclosure.

There has been no change in Bank One's internal control over financial reporting that occurred during Bank One's most recent fiscal quarter that has materially affected, or is reasonably likely to materially affect, Bank One's internal control over financial reporting.
