OUTSTANDING SECURITIES AND VOTING RIGHTS

As of the Record Date, there were issued and outstanding [49,786,611] shares of the common stock for the purpose of determining stockholders entitled vote or consent with respect to the Ratification and the Amendment Approval. The common stock is the only security of the Company that was entitled to vote on the matters described herein.

Each holder of common stock is entitled to one vote in person or by proxy for each share of common stock in such stockholder's name on the books of the Company on any matter submitted to the vote of stockholders at any meeting of the stockholders. However, under Delaware law, any action that may be taken at any stockholders' meeting may be taken by written consent of the requisite number of stockholders required to take such action. The Ratification, and the Amendment Approval each require the affirmative vote or written consent of the holders of a majority of the Company's outstanding common stock.

- (9) Excludes warrants to purchase 42,813 shares of common stock which contain provisions known as exercise caps which prohibit the holder of the warrants (and its affiliates) from exercising such warrants to the extent that giving effect to such exercise, such holder would beneficially own in excess of 4.999% and 9.999% of the Company's outstanding common stock, as the case may be. The holder can waive the 4.999% limit, but such waiver will not become effective until the 61st day after such notice is delivered to the Company, and these limits will not restrict the number of shares of common stock which a holder may receive or beneficially own in order to determine the amount of securities or other consideration that such holder may receive in the event of a merger or other business combination or reclassification involving the Company. The table set forth above reflects the operation of such exercise caps in that we have not included 42,813 shares of common stock issuable pursuant to such warrants as SF Capital Partners has advised us that it does not beneficially own such shares due to the fact that it cannot exercise its right to purchase these shares at this time. In the absence of such caps, SF Capital would be able to purchase all the shares issuable upon exercise of these warrants and would have a beneficial ownership percentage of 8.590%.

THE REVERSE SPLIT

In June, 2006, our Board of Directors approved, and we announced, a 1 for 15 reverse split of our common stock, effective on June 15, 2006 and our stock has been trading on this basis since that date. In response to a recent registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the SEC), it has inquired as to why we did not seek stockholder approval for this reverse split. Based on Delaware law, our counsel advised us that Board approval was all that was need to affect the split. In response to the SEC comment, and in order to avoid further delay of the registration process, our board has decided to seek stockholder ratification of the Reverse Split and approval of the Amendment to our Certificate of Incorporation setting forth the Reverse Split as part of our Certificate of Incorporation.

Our Board of Directors therefore approved the Amendment on October 4, 2006, set October 5, 2006 as the Record Date for determining stockholders eligible to vote and directed that we submit the Ratification and the Amendment Approval to our largest stockholders as of the Record Date for their approval by written consent as permitted by the Delaware General Corporation Law.

Pursuant to the Delaware General Corporation Law, a majority of the outstanding shares of voting stock entitled to vote thereon is sufficient to approve the Ratification and is required to approve the Amendment. Section 228 of the Delaware General Corporation Law provides that any action required or permitted to be taken at a meeting of stockholders may be taken without a meeting if a written consent is signed by stockholders holding at least a majority of the voting power of the corporation entitled to vote on such action (except that if a different proportion of voting power is required for such action at a meeting (which is not the case here), then that proportion of written consents is required). Where an action is authorized by written consent, no meeting of stockholders need be called. Section 228(e) of the Delaware General Corporation Law also requires us to give notice to stockholders of such action by written consent.

As of the Record Date approximately 90% of our common stock was owned by 19 investors. We sought and have received from this group of investors, the approval of stockholders holding in excess of 50% of our common stock to the Ratification and Amendment Approval. Accordingly, consistent with Delaware Law, the action to approve the Ratification and the Amendment Approval will not be submitted to our other stockholders for a vote and this Information Statement is being furnished to our stockholders only to provide notice of the taking of such action by written consent.

Pursuant to Rule 14c-2(b) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, we must mail this Information Statement to our stockholders at least 20 days prior to the date when the corporate action described herein is taken. Accordingly, we anticipate that the Amendment will be filed on November [], 2006, which will be the 21st day following the date of mailing of this Information Statement and become effective promptly thereafter.

No additional stockholder consents are solicited in connection with this Information Statement.

This Information Statement will also serve as written notice to stockholders pursuant to Section 228(e) of the Delaware General Corporation Law.

A copy of the stockholder action by written consent approving the Ratification and the Amendment Approval is attached as Annex A.

Table of Contents

Effect of the Amendment and Reverse Split on Stockholders

The Amendment will not affect any stockholders' rights or ownership position in Lime Energy Co. The Reverse Split did not affect any stockholder's proportionate equity interest in the Company. Holders of our common stock will continue to be entitled to receive such dividends as may be declared by the Board of Directors, although the Board of Directors does not currently intend to declare or distribute any dividends. Our reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, will not be affected by the Amendment or the Reverse Split.

The initial trading price of our common stock increased by a factor of 15 on June 15th, the first day of trading following the Reverse Split, however, the trading price has declined since then and there can be no assurance that it will not decline farther in the future.

Effect of the Reverse Split on Capital Stock

Our Certificate of Incorporation, as amended, currently authorizes the issuance of 200,000,000 shares of common stock and 5,000,000 shares of Preferred Stock. The Amendment will not change these numbers of authorized shares. Immediately prior to June 15, 2006, there were 51,297,120 shares of common stock outstanding and 232,613 shares of Series E Convertible Preferred Stock outstanding which were convertible into 23,261,300 shares of common stock. Giving effect to the Reverse Split, the number of outstanding shares of common stock became approximately 3,419,808, and the number of shares of common stock issuable upon conversion of the outstanding Series E Convertible Preferred Stock became approximately 1,550,753. The Reverse Split and the Amendment have no effect on the par values of the common stock and Preferred Stock, which remain at $0.0001 and $0.01 per share, respectively. Because the number of issued shares of common stock decreased but the par value remained unchanged after the Reverse Split, our stated capital decreased by approximately $4,787 and our additional paid in capital increased by a corresponding amount. This change in our capital accounts along with the change in the number of outstanding shares of common stock was reflected on our June 30, 2006 financial statements filed on Form 10-Q. The Amendment will not change this.

Certain Anti-Takeover Effects of the Reverse Split

Under certain circumstances, our Board of Directors can create impediments to, or delay persons seeking to effect, a takeover or transfer of control of the Company by causing the remaining authorized shares to be issued to a holder or holders who side with the Board in opposing a takeover bid that the Board of Directors determines is not in the best interests of the Company and its stockholders. Such an issuance would diminish the voting power of existing stockholders who favor a change in control, and the ability to issue the shares could discourage an attempt to acquire control of the Company. While it may be deemed to have potential anti-takeover effects, the Board implemented the Reverse Split solely for the reasons described hereinabove, to facilitate raising additional capital. The Reverse Split (and the Amendment with respect thereto) were not prompted by any specific efforts or takeover threat currently known or perceived by management of the Company.

The Reverse Split could have had a material adverse consequence to the Company's independent stockholders. Such adverse consequences include, but are not limited to the following:

Although the Reverse Split affected the outstanding stock on a pro rata basis, thus affecting each of our stockholders equally, as a result of the Reverse Split some stockholders own fewer than 100 shares, which could make it more difficult to sell the shares. Stockholders holding fewer than 100 shares (otherwise known as Odd Lots) of the Company s common stock may have difficulty in disposing of their shares because the commissions charged to sell such shares may exceed the value of the shares.

The Reverse Split results in an increase in the number of available authorized, but unissued shares of common stock, some or all of which could be issued upon action by the Board of Directors without stockholder approval. The issuance of a significant number of shares could materially dilute the percentage ownership interest of the current stockholders and there is no assurance that such issuance would result in benefits to the existing stockholders such as greater market liquidity or a higher price for the shares. Since June 15, 2006, we have issued 17,875,000 shares in connection with raising capital, 21,648,346 to convert the Series E Convertible Preferred Stock and 5,500,000 shares in connection with acquisitions. All of these transactions have been publicly reported.

No Dissenters Rights

Delaware law does not vest stockholders of the Company with dissenters rights with respect to the Amendment or the Reverse Split.

Resale of Restricted Securities

The Amendment and Reverse Split will not affect the transferability of shares of common stock or any present restriction on the sale thereof. Therefore, for purposes of determining the relevant holding period as prescribed by Rule 144 under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, the shares of common stock held by each stockholder after the effective date of the Reverse Split will be deemed to have been acquired on the date on which the stockholder acquired the shares of common stock held immediately prior to the effective date of the Reverse Split.

Federal Income Tax Consequences

A summary of the federal income tax consequences of the Reverse Split is set forth below. The discussion is based on present federal income tax law. The discussion is not, and should not be relied on as, a comprehensive analysis of the tax issues arising from or relating to the Reverse Split. We do not purport to deal with all aspects of federal income taxation that may be relevant to a particular stockholder in light of such stockholder s personal investment circumstances or to certain types of stockholders subject to special treatment under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the Code) (including, without limitation, financial institutions, broker-dealers, regulated investment companies, life insurance companies, tax-exempt organizations, foreign corporations and non-resident aliens). Accordingly, stockholders are urged to consult their personal tax advisors for an analysis of the effect of the Reverse Split on their own tax situations, including consequences under applicable state, local or foreign tax laws.

The Company believes the Reverse Split qualifies as a recapitalization under Section 368(a)(1)(E) of the Code, to the extent that outstanding shares of common stock are exchanged for a reduced number of shares of common stock. Therefore, neither the Company nor its stockholders will recognize any gain or loss for federal income tax purposes as a result thereof.

Table of Contents

The shares of common stock held by each stockholder as a result of the Reverse Split have an aggregate basis, for computing gain or loss, equal to the aggregate basis of the shares of common stock held by such stockholder immediately prior to the Reverse Split. A stockholder's holding period for the shares of common stock held as a result of the Reverse Split will include the holding period for shares of common stock combined thereby, provided that such outstanding shares of common stock were held by the stockholder as capital assets on the effective date of the Reverse Split.

Vote Required

Approval of the Ratification and the Amendment Approval with respect to the Reverse Split requires the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of common stock entitled to vote on the proposal. Stockholders owning a majority of the outstanding shares of common stock approved the Ratification and the Amendment Approval by written consents dated October 5, 2006.

OTHER ACTION

No other action was taken or authorized by the stockholders' written consent to corporate action to which this Information Statement pertains.

COSTS OF INFORMATION STATEMENT

This Information Statement has been prepared by the Company and its Board of Directors. The Company will bear the costs of distributing this Information Statement to stockholders, including the expense of preparing, assembling, printing and mailing the Information Statement. Although there is no formal agreement to do so, the Company may reimburse banks, brokerage houses and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries for their reasonable expenses in forwarding this Information Statement and related materials to stockholders.
