EXPLANATORY NOTE

This Form 8-K/A amends the Current Report on Form 8-K of Ascent Capital Group, Inc., dated July 10, 2013 (the "Original 8-K"). The purpose of this Form 8-K/A is to amend and restate Items 8.01 and 9.01 of the Original 8-K and to include Exhibits 23.1, 99.2 and 99.3. Terms used but not defined in this Form 8-K/A have the meanings ascribed to them in the Original 8-K.

Item 8.01. Other Events.

In connection with discussions being held with proposed lenders, Ascent is providing the following information:

Financing. Ascent and Monitronics expect the Security Networks Purchase Price to be financed primarily with new debt at the Ascent and Monitronics levels, as well as an incremental amount of cash from Ascent's balance sheet. Monitronics expects to pay an estimated $14.8 million of fees and expenses related to the acquisition financing, including commitment, placement and other financing fees, financial advisory costs and other transaction costs and professional fees.

Select Financial and Operating Metrics. Ascent and Monitronics report the following financial and operating information as of June 30, 2013:

838,723 subscribers

Recurring monthly revenue ("RMR") of $33.5 million, and average RMR per subscriber of $39.98

Consolidated cash, restricted cash and marketable securities on hand of $228.2 million

$33.6 million outstanding under Monitronics' revolving credit facility

Attrition of 12.5% for the twelve months ended June 30, 2013

Information Regarding Security Networks. Security Networks is the 14th largest alarm monitoring companies in the United States. Based out of West Palm Beach, Florida, the company provides security alarm monitoring services, including monitoring signals arising from burglaries, fires, medical alerts and other events through security systems at subscribers' premises, as well as providing customer service and technical support. Security Networks works with its rapidly growing network of exclusive dealers, who provide sales and installation support on behalf of the company to its customers.

Security Networks' business model is very similar to that of Monitronics. Security Networks outsources its sales and installation functions to its nationwide network of dealers. Security Networks enters into agreements with dealers on an exclusive basis only after a review of the dealer's qualifications, licensing and financial health. Through this program, the dealers receive origination fees for qualified accounts based on a multiple of RMR affected by credit score, billing method, contract term and volume. As of June 30, 2013, Security Networks had over 225 active dealers nationwide generating accounts in 33 states. Also as of June 30, 2013, Security Networks reported RMR of $8.4 million (including approximately $0.1 million of wholesale monitoring revenue) and approximately 195,000 subscribers. Unlike Monitronics, Security Networks includes wholesale monitoring revenue in its RMR consistent with the definition used in the Agreement. Also, as of June 30, 2013, Security Networks reports an average subscriber credit score of 720.

Substantially all of Security Networks' revenue is derived from recurring monthly revenues under security alarm monitoring contracts acquired through its dealer network. The financial success of their accounts is largely dependent on the underwriting standards of these accounts and their corresponding attrition rates. Like Monitronics, Security Networks has a rigorous due diligence process to assure the quality of alarm monitoring contracts. This process typically includes verification of credit score, homeownership and the alarm system's ability to communicate with the monitoring center. Following an initial 90-day service period, Security Networks employs its own field service technicians to service the subscriber's premises (unlike Monitronics, which continues to access its dealer network to provide field service to Monitronics' subscribers). Consistent with Monitronics' low cost philosophy, the Security Networks team operates without a local office and only in the most densely populated markets. Security Networks' alarm monitoring contracts include a minimum term of three years, with many including a five-year term. These strict underwriting standards and contract terms have resulted in a large volume of high-quality accounts with statistically predictable subscriber behavior. Security Networks reports life cycle attrition levels in line with Monitronics' current portfolio.
