Item 6. Resignations of Registrant's Directors

On November 30, 2003, Roy E. Disney resigned from his positions as Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors of The Walt Disney Company (the Company) and Chairman of the Feature Animation Division of the Company. A copy of his letter addressed to Michael D. Eisner, Chairman of the Board of Directors and Chief Executive Officer of the Company, in which Mr. Disney described his disagreement with the Company, is attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1.

On November 30, 2003, Senator George J. Mitchell, Presiding Director of the Board of Directors of the Company, issued the following statement on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Company: The Governance and Nominating Committee recently informed Mr. Disney of its judgment that the mandatory age limits of the [C]ompany's Corporate Governance Guidelines, which had previously been unanimously approved by the Board, should be applied to him and two other Board members, Thomas S. Murphy and Raymond Watson. It is unfortunate that the Committee's judgment to apply these unanimously adopted governance rules has become an occasion to raise again criticisms of the direction of the Company, and calls for change of management, that have been previously rejected by the Board.

On December 1, 2003, Stanley P. Gold resigned from his position as a director of the Company. A copy of his letter addressed to the Board of Directors of the Company, in which Mr. Gold described his disagreement with the Company, is attached hereto as Exhibit 99.2.

On December 1, 2003, the independent members of the Board of Directors of the Company issued the following statement: We categorically reject Mr. Gold's untrue and unwarranted allegations about the Company and the Board. As he has done repeatedly in the past, Mr. Gold in his letter persists in characterizing the Board's failure to agree with him as failure to consider the issues he has raised. In fact, the Board has extensively discussed and deliberated on each of the concerns he has expressed. Because the Board, after careful consideration, has refused to accept their principal recommendation to replace management, Mr. Gold and Mr. Disney have chosen their current destructive course of action. Both Mr. Gold and Mr. Disney, along with every other director, voted in favor of the very retirement rules to which they now object and which apply to all directors. It is unfortunate that the application of these rules has been used as an occasion to again raise unwarranted criticisms of the Company and of the Board. It is a disservice to shareholders and to employees that the Company faces this distraction at a time when its performance is improving as a result of growth plans and initiatives being implemented by management with Board approval.
