For Disney, the acquisition of Marvel offers a unique opportunity to strengthen our position as a leading global provider of high quality branded entertainment, to grow our businesses and to build long-term value for our shareholders.

We re incredibly excited because we are not only combining the great characters and storylines of Marvel with those of Disney, but we are bringing together two groups of talented and dedicated people whose creativity and passion have made their companies successful.

Like Disney s characters and stories, Marvel s transcend gender, age, cultural and geographical boundaries and can live successfully on both traditional and new media platforms. That makes Marvel particularly valuable in a world of increasing consumer choice.

We plan to use all of Disney s global distribution and marketing resources to extend and increase the popularity of the Marvel brand and its treasure trove of over 5000 characters. In doing that, we think we can significantly build both businesses and make the sum of our parts even stronger.

Our acquisition three years ago of Pixar exemplified our focus on creating high quality, technologically innovative entertainment that appeals to people all over the world. Marvel offers us the same kind of great opportunity.
