Blockbuster Board Urges Stockholders to Vote the WHITE Proxy Card

DALLAS, June 3, 2010 / PRNewswire-FirstCall / Blockbuster Inc. (NYSE: BBI, BBI.B), a leading global provider of media entertainment, has sent the following letter to its stockholders urging them to vote the WHITE proxy card FOR the Company's nominees for election to the board:

To Our Fellow Blockbuster Stockholders:

As you know, Gregory Meyer, a dissident stockholder, is seeking election to the Blockbuster Board through a hostile proxy contest. In his latest attack this time against incumbent director Gary Fernandes Meyer further demonstrates the behavior that contributed to our decision not to nominate him to your Board in the first place. We continue to firmly believe that Meyer is not qualified to serve on your Board and that, if elected, he would pose a significant risk to the future of our Company. In casting your vote, please consider the following:

We believe Meyer has misrepresented himself and demonstrated questionable judgment.

Meyer has stated that he sold his DVD rental kiosk company, DVDXpress, to Coinstar in 2007 and was responsible for the DVDXpress division at Coinstar from 2007 to 2009 when it was merged with Redbox. He then appears to take personal credit for the success of Coinstar's combined DVD kiosk division and a majority of Coinstar's revenue and EBITDA. These assertions are misleading.

If Meyer is such an expert in the home entertainment industry, or even in the vending segment alone, why then is he not at Coinstar today running the Redbox business? The facts are that DVDXpress was deeply in debt to Coinstar when Coinstar acquired the business, Redbox and DVDXpress were completely separate entities during Meyer's tenure at Coinstar, and Meyer was not integral to the growth of the DVD kiosk business over the last several years.

Meyer also represents that he is a well-regarded industry consultant, yet when given the opportunity to do so, he refused to consult for Blockbuster in his area of expertise. In addition, we know of no major companies that have used Meyer's consulting services.

Additionally, in his solicitation materials, Meyer has referred to his suggestion regarding a potential time sensitive financial transaction which [he] believed could save the Company hundreds of millions of dollars over the subsequent few years while conserving liquidity in the near term, without any dilution to Blockbuster stockholders. He has also indicated that he is particularly concerned that Blockbuster selects the optimal restructuring option, if one is indeed required, that results in the lowest possible dilution, if any, of shareholders. Yet, he fails to mention that implementing his suggestion would result in a third party controlling the Company with the power to cause significant dilution to the Company's equity holders. Meyer's suggestion of this alternative while at the same time stressing the importance of preserving stockholder value is contradictory and further evidence that Meyer does not possess the skills or experience necessary to guide a large public company through complex refinancing transactions.

Meyer's blatant mischaracterizations of Mr. Fernandes' experience and expertise are desperate attempts to smear Mr. Fernandes' reputation and record.

We urge you to consider the truth when reviewing Meyer's misleading and inaccurate statements about Mr. Fernandes. We want to set the record straight regarding Mr. Fernandes and his contributions as a member of your Board.

TRUTH REGARDING HOME ENTERTAINMENT INDUSTRY EXPERIENCE: Meyer has attacked Mr. Fernandes' industry expertise. In fact, Mr. Fernandes is uniquely qualified to contribute to the leadership of a company pursuing both digital and store-based delivery of home entertainment. The Board specifically recruited Mr. Fernandes to the Blockbuster Board in 2004 because of his extensive technology background and expertise, including his tenure as Vice Chairman of EDS, at a time when Blockbuster was beginning to expand its footprint beyond stores. He has been actively involved in the Company's expansion into by-mail, kiosk and digital delivery. In addition, Mr. Fernandes brings valuable real estate expertise with respect to the store side of our business through his service as Chairman of FLF Investments, a privately-held entity involved with the acquisition and management of commercial real estate properties and other assets, for more than a decade.

Meyer's criticism of Mr. Fernandes for holding an interest in two real estate limited partnerships that each leased one retail space to Blockbuster for store locations is absurd and ill-informed. Meyer insinuates that Mr. Fernandes has somehow influenced Blockbuster to keep open the stores to serve his own interests. You should know that Mr. Fernandes' interest in these leases is not material in nature. Further, we have actually closed one of the retail locations recently, and the other store remains open because it is consistently profitable.

TRUTH REGARDING FINANCIAL EXPERTISE AND BOARD EXPERIENCE: Meyer has trumpeted his CFA designation as an imprimatur for financial expertise and suggested that this somehow makes him more qualified in this area than Mr. Fernandes. In fact, Mr. Fernandes has substantial expertise in financial matters. In addition to serving on Blockbuster's Audit Committee for the past two years, Mr. Fernandes served on the Audit Committee of 7-Eleven for twelve years, the Audit Committee of webMethods for two years (including as Chairman) and the Finance Committee of EDS for seven years. He has also served in senior executive positions with financial management authority. More broadly, Mr. Fernandes has served as a director of both public and private companies as well as charitable institutions for nearly three decades. Currently, he serves as a director of CA Technologies and BancTec, in addition to serving on the board of governors of the Boys & Girls Clubs of America and as a trustee for the O'Hara Trust and the Hall-Voyer Foundation. This extensive background is far more relevant and valuable than Meyer's. Meyer may have passed a CFA test but he has absolutely no public company management or board experience.

TRUTH REGARDING STOCK OWNERSHIP AND ALIGNMENT WITH FELLOW STOCKHOLDERS: Contrary to Meyer's claims, Mr. Fernandes has purchased Blockbuster stock in the open market out of his own pocket during his tenure as a director. Additionally, Mr. Fernandes currently receives no cash compensation from the Company; since first given the opportunity to do so in mid-2007, he has elected to receive all of his director compensation in equity. He also has not disposed of a single share of Blockbuster stock. Mr. Fernandes has firmly aligned his personal interests with those of our stockholders. Meyer's assertions otherwise are simply wrong.

TRUTH REGARDING MR. FERNANDES' S RELATIONSHIP WITH MR. KEYES: Meyer has suggested that Mr. Fernandes is not adequately independent of Jim Keyes, our Chairman and CEO. On the contrary, Mr. Fernandes is wholly independent of Mr. Keyes. Meyer alleges that Mr. Fernandes was a member of the Nominating Committee that appointed Mr. Keyes as our Chairman and CEO. Again, this statement is simply wrong. Mr. Fernandes did not serve on Blockbuster's Nominating/Corporate Governance Committee at that time. To suggest that Mr. Fernandes is beholden to anyone in his service on the Board other than our stockholders is completely unfounded.

TRUTH REGARDING 7-ELEVEN STOCKHOLDER LITIGATION: Meyer's references to unproven allegations in prior lawsuits where Mr. Fernandes and Mr. Keyes were named defendants are wholly irrelevant and further demonstrate Meyer's outlandish attempts to smear Mr. Fernandes. The suits were settled by 7-Eleven's current owners with absolutely no finding of wrongdoing on the part of Mr. Fernandes or Mr. Keyes and, in fact, all claims against both were ultimately dismissed.

The bottom line: Electing Meyer to your Board is a high-risk proposition.

Meyer is not qualified to serve on your Board, and we have yet to determine what value he can bring to our Company. Even worse, he has been less than forthcoming about himself and has baselessly targeted Mr. Fernandes – a Board leader who consistently enjoys strong stockholder support for re-election to the Board each year, and who has proven, relevant industry, financial and governance expertise, significant public company director and senior management experience and interests directly aligned with your own.

As we have stated before, Blockbuster faces a number of challenges without quick fixes or easy solutions. Your Board and management are focused on addressing these challenges and positioning our Company for the future. Meyer is a distraction with no workable ideas, and we urge you not to subscribe to his inflammatory rhetoric.

We strongly encourage you to support Blockbuster by voting your WHITE proxy card today, regardless of how many shares you own. Even if you have already voted on a Gold proxy card, it is not too late to change your vote. Only the latest dated proxy card will be counted.
