As part of United Technologies, we will have the opportunity to execute our strategy on a larger scale, and take advantage of the key capabilities with an expanded product range, supported by the best talent in the industry.

The transaction with United Technologies also offers our employees the opportunity to be part of an organization with a shared vision and greater depth of resources. We expect that this transaction will offer expanded opportunities for career growth and advancement for employees of both companies.

4. How does this announcement affect employees?

Today's announcement should have no impact on your day-to-day responsibilities or the way in which Goodrich conducts business. It is important to remember that until the transaction is completed, Goodrich and United Technologies remain independent companies, and it is business as usual as we continue to execute on our strategic plan.

Both Goodrich and United Technologies have successful integration track records, and given the complementary nature of our businesses, we expect a strong cultural fit and a seamless transition. Over the coming weeks, we will be forming an integration team comprised of senior executives from both companies to lead the integration effort and assist with the transition process.

5. Will there be any layoffs or other changes for employees as a result of this announcement?

United Technologies recognizes the role our employees play in Goodrich's success. The transaction with United Technologies offers our employees the opportunity to be part of an organization with a shared vision and greater depth of resources. 6. Will salaries and benefits be affected?

Until the transaction is completed, Goodrich and United Technologies remain independent companies and your salary and benefits remain unchanged. United Technologies recognizes the value of our employees and following completion of the transaction, we expect that United Technologies will offer employees comparable salary and benefits as those offered by Goodrich. It is very early in this process and many compensation and benefit matters will be determined near or after closing of the transaction.

7. What are United Technologies' plans for Goodrich and our senior leadership?

Following completion of the transaction, Marshall Larsen, now Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of Goodrich, will become Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of a combined UTC Aerospace Systems business unit. The senior leadership team of the combined business will be located in Charlotte, North Carolina. Both Goodrich and United Technologies' Hamilton Sundstrand brands will be maintained within this business unit. Additional decisions regarding leadership will be determined near or after the closing of the transaction.

8. What will happen to Goodrich's headquarters?

The senior leadership team of the combined business will be located in Charlotte, North Carolina. United Technologies is dedicated to continuing many of the philanthropic efforts that have made Goodrich a strong supporter of local communities.

9. When will the transaction be completed? What needs to happen before the transaction can close?

The transaction, which we expect to be completed in mid-2012, is subject to approval by Goodrich shareholders and regulatory approvals, as well as other customary closing conditions.

Until the transaction closes, Goodrich and United Technologies will continue to operate as independent companies and it will be business as usual here at Goodrich as we continue to execute on our strategic plan.

Compensation and Benefits Frequently Asked Questions

As we move towards completion of the merger, we will keep you updated on important developments that may affect your compensation and benefits. Keep in mind, however, that until the merger is completed, which is expected to occur in mid-2012, Goodrich Corporation and United Technologies Corporation (UTC) will continue to operate as separate, independent companies. Accordingly, we expect that compensation and benefits programs provided by Goodrich will generally continue in the same manner as they have been at least until closing.

12. Will my employee benefits be changed after the merger?

First of all, any benefits you have earned, and continue to earn, as an employee of Goodrich will be provided under the terms of the Goodrich plans. No formal decisions have been made regarding future benefits; however comparable benefits must be provided for at least one year after the merger closes. Benefit changes, if any, will be with as much advance notice as possible. In the meantime, your pension, savings and health and welfare benefits, severance/redundancy benefits, vacation and other programs provided by Goodrich will continue in the same manner as they are currently provided.

13. I am about to enroll in my U.S. medical benefits for 2012. How will they be affected?

Annual benefits enrollment for U.S. employees begins in mid October. You will enroll in your benefits for the calendar year 2012. At this time, we don't expect any changes to the benefits during the year. If there were any changes, you would be given another opportunity to enroll for the remainder of the year.

14. What will happen to my pension benefit that I've earned?

Goodrich provides pension benefits through a number of different plans in different countries. You will receive the amount of your pension benefit that you have earned under the plan when you retire. In general, your pension benefits are funded through a pension plan trust. The assets in the trust can only be used to pay benefits to participants and reasonable plan administrative expenses. Assets set aside in a pension trust cannot be used by Goodrich or UTC for any other reason.

15. What will happen to my 401(k) account and any Goodrich stock that I have in my account? (U.S. employees only)

Your 401(k) account is held in a trust that can only be used to pay benefits to participants. The assets in the trust cannot be used by Goodrich or UTC for any other reason. Your account remains your account and you can continue to make contributions and can direct your investments as long as you remain in the plan. If you hold Goodrich stock in your 401(k) account at the time the merger closes, that stock will be sold at $127.50 per share and the cash proceeds will remain in your account and will continue to be tax-deferred as long as they remain in your account. You can continue to invest in the Company Stock Fund and/or transfer money in or out of the Company Stock Fund until the merger closes. It is likely the Goodrich 401(k) would eventually merge into the UTC 401(k) plan.

16. I am participating in the Goodrich Corporation Employee Stock Purchase Plan for U.S and Canadian employees. How will this be handled due to the merger?

If you participate in the 2011 Stock Purchase Offering, you will continue to contribute to the plan for the remainder of 2011. The shares you purchase at the end of the offering period will be delivered to your Fidelity account in early January 2012 as they normally are. If you participate in the Canadian plan, you may still sell up to 50% of your shares to cover taxes. At the time the merger closes, you will receive $127.50 per share (or the Canadian dollar equivalent) for each of those shares that you continue to hold on the closing date. This will be a cash settlement and will be subject to capital gains tax (long or short term depending on how long you held the shares) based on the amount that you paid for the shares.

17. Will there be a new offering under the Employee Stock Purchase Plan for U.S. and Canadian employees for 2012?

No, there will be no further offerings under the Employee Stock Purchase Plan after the end of the 2011 offering period.

18. I am participating in the Goodrich UK Save as You Earn (SAYE) share scheme. How will this be affected by the merger?

If you participate in one of the ongoing SAYE offering periods you will continue to contribute to the scheme for the remainder of the offering period, or until the merger closes, whichever comes first. We expect that the 2010 three-year offering will end in May 2012. If your SAYE contract matures and you elect to exercise your options the shares you purchased will be delivered to you after the end of the offering period. At the time the merger closes, you will be paid the equivalent of $127.50 per share in Pounds Sterling.

19. I am participating in a SAYE offering period that will not end before the merger is expected to close. What will happen to my contributions and the shares that I subscribed to purchase?

The scheme will close on completion of the merger as Goodrich shares will cease to be quoted and would not qualify. There will be an opportunity to terminate the SAYE savings contract and exercise existing options early in part, up to an amount based on contributions already made. Goodrich is currently reviewing the terms of the scheme with Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) to ensure that we understand the scheme and tax implications of the merger. We will continue to provide updates on the status of this review.

20. Will there be a new offering under the SAYE for 2012?

No, there will be no further offerings under the SAYE scheme after the end of the current offering period.

21. Will we be entitled to our normal bonuses or gain sharing payments for 2011?

Until the closing, all bonus and gain sharing plans will continue to operate business as usual. It is important that we continue to focus on our business results and perform to the best of our abilities. We will be evaluating our 2012 plans in the coming months and will provide more information later in the year.

22. I own Goodrich stock, what are the tax implications of the stock purchase by UTC?

You will need to contact your tax advisor to determine the impact on your situation. Since UTC will purchase your Goodrich shares for $127.50 per share you will likely have a taxable gain on the sale. How that gain is treated will depend upon many factors. It is important that you keep accurate records as to how much you paid for your Goodrich shares so that you can determine your taxable gain. If you participate in a plan that Fidelity Investments administers, Fidelity should have the cost basis for any shares that you have purchased or acquired through Goodrich stock plans.

23. How will this affect me if I have plans to retire in the near future?

There will be no changes in retirement benefits in the near future. Any benefits you have already earned will not be changed. If any employee benefit changes are considered we will communicate with you in advance of any change. Any changes will affect future benefits only.

24. I have been granted Restricted Stock Units (RSUs) under the Goodrich Corporation Equity Compensation Plan. How will these be handled as a result of the merger?

Your unvested RSUs will immediately vest at the time of closing. You will be paid $127.50 per unit, less applicable taxes, shortly after the merger closes. The mechanics of this cash payment will be determined in the coming months.

25. I have been granted Stock Options under the Goodrich Corporation Equity Compensation Plan. How will these be handled as a result of the merger?

Until closing, and subject to any trading/ownership policies that may apply, you will be able to exercise any vested stock options, but keep in mind that such exercises are taxable events. At closing, each of your vested and unvested stock options will be canceled in exchange for a cash payment payable shortly after the merger closes, equal to $127.50 per share, less the exercise price per share and applicable taxes. The mechanics of this cash payment will be determined in the coming months.
