(the notes )

This document (the supplement ) supplements the Note Prospectus in connection with any secondary market transactions in the notes by us, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Incorporated and any of our respective affiliates. Capitalized terms used but not defined in this supplement have the meanings set forth in the Note Prospectus.

The Starting Value for the notes was defined in the final term sheet dated October 27, 2016 (the Final Term Sheet ). The Starting Value was defined as the lowest closing level of the Market Measure on any Market Measure Business Day (subject to adjustment as set forth in the Final Term Sheet) during the Starting Value Determination Period. The closing level of the Market Measure on October 27, 2016, the first day of the Starting Value Determination Period, was 18,169.68.

The Starting Value Determination Period expired on November 28, 2016. The lowest closing level of the Market Measure on any Market Measure Business Day during the Starting Value Determination Period was 17,888.28, which was the closing level of the Market Measure on November 4, 2016. This closing level is less than 18,169.68.

Therefore, the Starting Value and the Threshold Value for the notes is 17,888.28, and the Step Up Value is 21,376.49 (119.50% of the Starting Value, rounded to two decimal places).
