Semi-Annual Report

April 30, 2008

The Central Europe and Russia Fund, Inc.

LETTER TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

Dear Shareholder,

For the six months ended April 30, 2008, the Central Europe and Russia Fund's total return based on its net asset value per share was -6.01% in US dollar terms, while its total return based on market share price was -7.34%. The Fund slightly outperformed its benchmark, which had a total return of -7.44% during the same period.¹

During the Fund's second fiscal quarter, the Russian market recovered from the correction it underwent in January amidst volatility on global financial markets. The Russian Traded Index, which had been down almost 20% from its 2007 year-end close through mid-January, then posted an 18% gain from February to April. Within the Russian portion of the portfolio, the Fund's underweight positions in energy detracted from performance as most stocks in the sector posted double-digit gains, recovering from losses in January 2008.² In terms of specific stocks, the Fund's underweight positions in Lukoil and Rosneft were the biggest detractors from performance in this sector. This was more than offset by an overweight in the materials sector, where the Fund's ex-benchmark holding Mechel gained nearly 90% on positive news flows, including the potential IPO of its mining business, strong quarterly results, a favorable pricing environment, and analyst upgrades. In the financial sector, an overweight in Sberbank detracted from performance as the stock declined on continued negative global sentiment for financials. The Fund continues to favor the materials segment as the continued domestic infrastructure boom and spike in global materials prices boosted valuations and, in our opinion, should support future growth in the sector.

Turkish shares displayed their sensitivity to global sentiment regarding the credit crisis as Turkish equities continued to lag global markets through the end of April, while other markets began to recoup January losses. The ISE30 Index was the worst performing market among the Fund's core markets, losing 6.5% (in US dollar terms) during the fiscal second quarter. In addition to Turkey's position as a high beta market — putting it on the front line as global credit market tensions heated up — political uncertainty surrounding changes to its constitution hurt market sentiment and hindered a recovery.³ With the Turkish financial sector under continued pressure, the Fund's underweight in financials was one of the strongest favorable contributors to performance. The Turkish market remains the most attractively valued of the Emerging European markets on a 12 month forward-earnings basis. Gross domestic product (GDP) growth forecasts in the 4%-5% range should prove supportive in the medium term as interest rates and bond yields ease in the second half of 2008. The Fund's allocation to Turkish equities is slightly below the benchmark weight as of the end of the reporting period.

The Polish equity market posted a gain of 9.7% during the Fund's fiscal second quarter. However, the market had declined in January amidst global turbulence and PLN (Polish Zloty) 11 billion of outflows from local mutual funds, but stabilized in February and March with the help of strong macroeconomic data. GDP growth forecasts were revised upward to roughly 6% for the first half of the year followed by a moderate slowdown in the second half of the year to estimated growth of 4.5% on moderating domestic consumption. The Fund remains underweight in Polish equities.

Given the sound economic fundamentals and strong balance sheet of most of the blue chips, the Czech market was seen to be a safe haven compared to other Central European countries at the start of 2008. The Czech Traded Index was up 18% during the Fund's fiscal second quarter, largely due to the continuing appreciation of the CZK. The Fund maintained a significant underweight relative to the benchmark, because Czech shares trade at significant valuation premium to both Russian and Turkish shares on estimated 2008 and 2009 multiples.

The Hungarian economy continues to struggle with soft domestic demand, low investment activity and weak foreign direct investment. The Hungarian Traded Index gained 3% during the Fund's second fiscal quarter of 2008.⁴ The Fund's underweight in Hungary helped overall performance. On the stock level, an underweight position in Gedeon Richter also helped performance, as the stock declined on weaker-than-expected domestic sales and dividend payout. In relative terms, Hungary is still much cheaper than Poland, the Czech Republic and now Russia. Among the Fund's five core markets, we continue to allocate Hungarian equities the smallest weight in the portfolio.

The Fund's discount to net asset value averaged 9.96% during the six months ended April 30, 2008. The Fund had a long-term capital gain distribution, in the amount of USD 8.84 and a short-term capital gain distribution in the amount of USD 0.47, per share basis on December 31, 2007.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Czech Republic:

Little evidence is yet available on how the economy is managing to cope with the outcome of tax reforms, slowing external demand, higher prices of commodities and the firming currency. Gross domestic product (GDP) growth as of March 2008 was +5.4% year-over-year (y-o-y), substantially lower than the 6.5% growth posted in March 2007, but still healthy. Most local economists have lowered their forecasts of expected 2008 GDP growth to around 4%. Our major concern is the firm currency, which, if sustained, could drag economic growth below the consensus baseline scenario. The Czech Koruna (CZK) became one of the fastest appreciating currencies in the world in the first quarter of 2008, and, we believe, is vulnerable to a correction. In terms of monetary policy, the Czech National Bank introduced an optimistic inflation outlook, which does not look fully credible in light of the current inflation level, which reached a nine-year high of 7.5% y-o-y in February 2008 before moderating somewhat in April to 6.8%.

Hungary:

The Hungarian economy continues to struggle with soft domestic demand, low investment activity and limited foreign direct investment. First quarter 2008 data has not shown any sign of a pick-up in export or industrial production. Inflation data is broadly in line with expectations of a moderate slowdown (April consumer price index, or CPI, was +6.6% y-o-y) and underlying dynamics do not show any significant inflation pressure. Better-than-expected fiscal results and soft domestic demand mean that Hungary's current account balance is no longer the key concern. In terms of currency, the removal of the fluctuation band should, in our opinion, have a longer-term positive impact on the Hungarian forint. In the short term, however, the market increasingly favors currencies with firm growth and well-financed current account balances.

Poland:

Following a soft patch at the end of 2007, activity indicators rebounded strongly at the start of 2008 before slowing again. Inflation has been fairly steady in 2008, climbing 4.0% y-o-y in April and is expected to peak in August at 5.2% y-o-y, with food prices as a key factor. As a result, the Central Bank is likely to increase its benchmark interest rate 50 basis points (one basis point equals .01%) to 6.25%. GDP growth is expected to slow to 5.5% in 2008, according to government estimates. Relatively low foreign debt levels, relatively tight fiscal policy and a fair growth outlook count in favor of a one-notch upgrade by Standard & Poor's in 2008. The catalyst would be a government announcement of concrete reform measures.

Russia:

Widespread consumer and investment growth continued at the start of 2008, as retail sales and investment continued to expand strongly, reaching 17.7% and 21.1% y-o-y in February, respectively. A significant expansion of exports due to record high oil prices provided an additional boost to GDP, which grew 9.5% y-o-y in December 2007 and may beat the 6.8% forecast for 2008. However, the rapid economic expansion continues to fuel inflation, which has accelerated to 14.3% y-o-y in April. We expect inflation to remain in double-digit territory throughout the year, gradually declining to about 10.7% in December. The accelerating inflation prompted a policy response from the Central Bank of Russia, which began to tighten monetary policy for the first time since 1998. We expect several interest rate increases this year. Record high oil prices provided strong support to the Russian balance of payments, which remained robust in the first quarter of 2008. International reserves rose by $28 billion (US dollars), while the currency appreciated against the dollar.

Turkey:

A long-awaited revision to Turkey's GDP data, to become consistent with Eurostat data, resulted in a 32% upward revision to nominal GDP, leading to a significant jump in per capita GDP and a favorable decline in various ratios that are calculated as a percentage of GDP, such as the current account deficit and public sector debt. Due to the GDP revisions, as well as lower-than-expected debt dynamics, public sector gross debt-to-GDP ended 2007 at 39%, well below the Maastricht criteria level of 60%, a key criterion for European Union (EU) accession. However, recent data show a slowdown in GDP growth with household consumption serving as a drag. A fall in consumer confidence to the lowest figure on record suggests we will not see a strong pick-up in household spending anytime soon. Looking at the trade balance data, exports surprised to the upside, rising 28% y-o-y in March, while imports rose 27%. The current account deficit is likely to be shaped by high oil prices, given that Turkey imports 90% of its oil.

INTERVIEW WITH THE LEAD PORTFOLIO MANAGER — Ralf Oberbannscheidt

Question: What are the prospects for the Russian market now that Vladimir Putin has moved into the role of Prime Minister and Dmitry Medvedev has taken over as President?

Answer: We expect the new power structure to mean continuity in Putin's liberal economic policy. This outlook is supported by Moody's decision at the end of March to place Russia's sovereign rating under review for a possible upgrade. Fundamentally, due to its commodity exposure and the country's strong balance sheet, Russia has qualities of a "safe haven" among world markets, and it may see more funds flowing in as doubts about US prospects linger. In our opinion, the sectors that appear well-placed to perform strongly include minerals (gold, nickel, copper, gas and oil — helped by tax reforms and high commodity price forecasts), beneficiaries of domestic consumption, and infrastructure-related industries (steels, cements, pipes). Prime Minister Putin made it clear from his first days in his new post that tax reform in the oil and gas sector is a priority. Intended to boost production, we see this as a significant potential driver for the Russian market, as it could increase the fair values of Russian oil and gas majors by 10-20%. Meanwhile, President Medvedev has stated his intent to pursue various mechanisms — such as private/public partnerships, tax credits, and government financing — to rapidly upgrade the country's infrastructure.

Question: The fund is currently underweight in all of the Central European markets relative to the benchmark. Are there any interesting investment opportunities in Central Europe?

Answer: On an individual stock level, the fund has overweight positions in several Central European stocks that we believe offer strong potential returns, and we always have a "wish list" of stocks that we are potentially interested in buying. However, some of the mid-cap stocks we like are less liquid, and we are not always able to buy shares in good companies at a price that we find attractive so we have to be patient and choose the right time to invest. On a country level, Poland is currently the fund's largest weight amongst the Central European markets. In particular, we believe some of the Polish mid-cap stocks in the construction and consumer-related sectors represent potentially attractive investment opportunities. However, the Polish market may still face some headwinds, given the negative bias investors have towards the financial sector globally and the heavy weighting of financials within Polish market indices. Though many people believe the US Federal Reserve Board's role in the takeover of Bear Stearns marked an inflection point for the banking sector, we expect further negative news flow from developed market banks. Given the dominant position of financials in Poland, it is difficult for us to be too optimistic about the near-term prospects for the Polish equity market overall, but we continue to seek out good investment opportunities throughout the Central European region.

Question: The Turkish market experienced a negative return during the fund's second fiscal quarter, while the fund's four other core markets had positive returns, outperforming US and global markets. What are the reasons for the Turkish market's underperformance?

Answer: The Turkish market was hit hard in January by the global credit crisis due to its high beta as well as the significant weighting (as in Poland) of financial stocks. While other markets subsequently recovered, the Turkish market was constrained by political tensions that weighed heavily on investor sentiment: the ruling AKP party (the Justice and Development Party — the ruling political party in Turkey) faces the opposition in a court case that could result in the AKP being outlawed and some of its key members, including the prime minister, being banned from politics for several years. Despite the recent market decline, we believe the longer-term prospects for the Turkish market are still positive. The convergence process has only just begun, economic fundamentals are relatively sound, reforms are slowly proceeding and valuations are too low for us to be anything but optimistic longer term. However, the next few months could prove bumpy and a return to market highs may be delayed by global tensions, risk aversion amongst investors, and the local political stresses. After the recent disappointing GDP data, there is some risk to growth forecasts for this year and, therefore, to earnings forecasts. However, most if not all of the bad news is probably priced into the stocks already. In the near-term, shares of export-oriented companies may perform better than those of domestically focused companies, as the recent weakness in the Turkish lira improves the competitiveness and profitability of export-oriented companies.

†† Total investment return based on market value is calculated assuming that shares of the Fund's common stock were purchased at the closing market price as of the beginning of the year, dividends, capital gains and other distributions were reinvested as provided for in the Fund's dividend reinvestment plan and then sold at the closing market price per share on the last day of the period. The computation does not reflect any sales commission investors may incur in purchasing or selling shares of the Fund. The total investment return based on the net asset value is similarly computed except that the Fund's net asset value is substituted for the closing market value.

* Return excludes the effect of the $2.40 and $3.25 respectively, for 2004 and 2006 per share dilution associated with the Fund's rights offering.

 The custody credits are attributable to interest earned on U.S. cash balances. The ratios of total expenses after custody credits to average net assets are 1.01%, 1.00%, 1.04%, 1.19%, 1.26% and 1.50% for 2008, 2007, 2006, 2005, 2004 and 2003, respectively.

 Annualized

* Not Annualized

 Not Annualized. The ratio for the six months ended April 30, 2008 has not been annualized since the Fund believes it would not be appropriate because the Fund's dividend income is not earned ratably throughout the fiscal year.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS — APRIL 30, 2008 (unaudited)

NOTE 1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Central Europe and Russia Fund, Inc. (the "Fund") is a non-diversified, closed-end management investment company incorporated in Maryland. The Fund commenced investment operations on March 6, 1990.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Security Valuation: Investments are stated at value. All securities for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the last sales price on the primary exchange on which they are traded prior to the time of valuation. If no sales price is available at that time, and both bid and ask prices are available, the securities are valued at the mean between the last current bid and ask prices; if no quoted asked prices are available, they are valued at the last quoted bid price. All securities for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued as determined in good faith by the Board of Directors of the Fund. The Fund calculates its net asset value per share at 11:30 a.m., New York time.

In September 2006, The Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) released Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 157, "Fair Value Measurements" ("FAS 157"). FAS 157 defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. FAS 157 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007. As of April 30, 2008, management does not believe the adoption of FAS 157 will impact the amounts reported in the financial statements; however, additional disclosures will be required about the inputs used to develop the measurements of fair value and the effect of certain of the measurements reported in the statement of operations for a fiscal period.

Securities Transactions and Investment Income: Securities transactions are recorded on the trade date. Cost of securities sold is calculated using the identified cost method. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date and interest income is recorded on an accrual basis. Such dividend income is recorded net of unrecoverable foreign withholding tax.

Securities Lending: The Fund lends securities to financial institutions. The Fund retains beneficial ownership of the securities it has loaned and continues to receive interest and dividends paid by the securities and to participate in any changes in their market value. The Fund requires the borrowers of the securities to maintain collateral with the Fund consisting of liquid, unencumbered assets having a value at least equal to or greater than the "Margin Percentage" of the value of the securities loaned. "Margin Percentage" shall mean (i) for collateral which is denominated in the same currency as the loaned securities, 102%, and (ii) for collateral which is denominated in a currency different from that of the loaned securities, 105%. The Fund may invest the cash collateral into a joint trading account in an affiliated money market fund pursuant to Exemptive Orders issued by the SEC. Deutsche Investment Management Americas Inc. receives a management fee (.07% annualized effective rate as of April 30, 2008) on the cash collateral invested in the affiliated money fund. The Fund receives compensation for lending its securities either in the form of fees or by earning interest on invested cash collateral net of fees paid to a lending agent, and a portion of the interest that is paid to the borrower of the securities. Either the Fund or the borrower may terminate the loan. The Fund is subject to all investment risks associated with the value of any cash collateral received, including, but not limited to, interest rate, credit and liquidity risk associated with such investments.

Foreign Currency Translation: The books and records of the Fund are maintained in United States dollars.

Assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency are translated into United States dollars at the 11:00 a.m. mid-point of the buying and selling spot rates quoted by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Purchases and sales of investment securities, income and expenses are reported at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. The resultant gains and losses arising from exchange rate fluctuations are identified separately in the Statement of Operations, except for such amounts attributable to investments, which are included in net realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments.

Contingencies: In the normal course of business, the Fund may enter into contracts with service providers that contain general indemnification clauses. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.

Taxes: No provision has been made for United States Federal income tax because the Fund intends to meet the requirements of the United States Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies and to distribute substantially all of its taxable income to shareholders.

The cost of investments at April 30, 2008 was $562,650,405 for United States Federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, as of April 30, 2008, net unrealized appreciation of investments aggregated $364,034,014, of which $380,271,283 and $16,237,269 related to gross unrealized appreciation and depreciation, respectively.

Additionally, based on the Fund's understanding of the tax rules and rates related to income, gains and transactions for the foreign jurisdictions in which it invests, the Fund will provide for foreign taxes, and where appropriate, deferred foreign taxes.

The Fund has reviewed the tax provisions for each of the three open tax years as of October 31, 2007 and has determined that no provision for income tax is required in the Fund's financial statements. The Fund's federal tax returns for the prior three fiscal years remain subject to examinations by the Internal Revenue Service.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders: The Fund records dividends and distributions to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. Income and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with United States Federal income tax regulations which may differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These differences, which could be temporary or permanent in nature, may result in reclassification of distributions; however, net investment income, net realized gains and net assets are not affected.

NOTE 2. MANAGEMENT AND INVESTMENT ADVISORY AGREEMENTS

The Fund has a Management Agreement with Deutsche Investment Management Americas Inc. (the "Manager"). The Fund has an Investment Advisory Agreement with Deutsche Asset Management International GmbH (the "Investment Adviser.") The Manager and the Investment Adviser are affiliated companies.

The Management Agreement provides the Manager with a fee, computed weekly and payable monthly, at the annual rates of 0.65% of the Fund's average weekly net assets up to $100 million, 0.55% of such assets in excess of $100 million and up to $500 million, 0.50% of such assets in excess of $500 million and up to $750 million, and 0.45% of such assets in excess of $750 million. The Investment Advisory Agreement provides the Investment Adviser with a fee, computed weekly and payable monthly, at the annual rates of 0.35% of the Fund's average weekly net assets up to $100 million and 0.25% of such assets in excess of $100 million. Accordingly, for the six months ended April 30, 2008, the combined fee pursuant to the Management and Investment Advisory Agreements was equivalent to an annualized effective rate of 0.79% of the Fund's average net assets.

Pursuant to the Management Agreement, the Manager is the corporate manager and administrator of the Fund and, subject to the supervision of the Board of Directors and pursuant to recommendations made by the Fund's Investment Adviser, determines the suitable securities for investment by the Fund. The Manager also provides office facilities and certain administrative, clerical and bookkeeping services for the Fund. Pursuant to the Investment Advisory Agreement, the Investment Adviser, in accordance with the Fund's stated investment objective, policies and restrictions, makes recommendations to the Manager with respect to the Fund's investments and, upon instructions given by the Manager as to suitable securities for investment by the Fund, transmits purchase and sale orders to select brokers and dealers to execute portfolio transactions on behalf of the Fund.

NOTE 3. TRANSACTIONS WITH AFFILIATES

DWS Scudder Investments Service Company ("DWS-SISC"), an affiliate of the Manager, is the transfer agent, dividend-paying agent and shareholder service agent of the Fund. Pursuant to a sub-transfer agency agreement between DWS-SISC and DST Systems, Inc. ("DST"), DWS-SISC has delegated certain transfer agent and dividend-paying agent paying function to DST. DWS-SISC compensates DST out of the shareholder servicing fee it receives from the Fund. For the six months ended April 30, 2008, the amount charged to the Fund by DWS-SISC aggregated $19,031, of which $9,176 is unpaid.

Certain Officers of the Fund are also officers of either the Manager or Deutsche Bank AG.

The Fund pays each Director not affiliated with the Manager retainer fees plus specified amounts for attended board and committee meetings.

Pursuant to an Exemptive Order issued by the SEC, the Fund may invest in the Cash Management QP Trust (the "QP Trust") and other affiliated funds managed by the Advisor. The QP Trust seeks to provide as high a level of current income as is consistent with the preservation of capital and the maintenance of liquidity. The QP Trust does not pay the Investment Manager a management fee for the affiliated funds' investments in the QP Trust.

In addition, during the six months ended April 30, 2008, the Advisor fully reimbursed the Fund $834 for losses on certain operation errors during the period. The amounts of the losses were less than 0.01% of the Fund's average daily net assets, thus having no impact on the Fund's total return.

NOTE 4. PORTFOLIO SECURITIES

Purchases and sales of investment securities, other than short-term investments, for the six months ended April 30, 2008 were $158,527,320 and $240,618,872, respectively.

NOTE 5. INVESTING IN FOREIGN MARKETS

Foreign investments may involve certain considerations and risks not typically associated with those of domestic origin as a result of, among others, the possibility of political and economic developments and the level of governmental supervision and regulation of foreign securities markets. In addition, certain foreign markets may be substantially smaller, less developed, less liquid and more volatile than the major markets of the United States. For example, there are significant risks inherent in securities of Russian issuers that are not typically associated with securities of companies in more developed countries.

NOTE 6. CAPITAL

During the six months ended April 30, 2008 and the year ended October 31, 2007, the Fund purchased 24,000 and 47,900 of its shares of Common Stock on the open market at a total cost of $1,449,374 and $2,834,364 ($60.39 and $59.17 average per share), respectively. The weighted average discount of these purchased shares comparing the purchased price to the net asset value at the time of purchase was 11.88% and 12.19%, respectively. These shares are held in Treasury.
