On July 29, 2007, the following advertisement regarding the merger of Yardville National Bancorp (YNB) into The PNC Financial Services Group, Inc. (PNC) will be published in the Trentonian, Trenton Times, Princeton Packet, Bridgewater Courier News and Hunterdon County Democrat newspapers:

Together, we can do more.

As you may already be aware, Yardville National Bank has reached a merger agreement with PNC. And we couldn't be happier. It's a marriage of two banks whose culture and heritage are ideally matched. And it's this great synergy of ideas and community spirit that will open the possibilities of what we can do together.

YNB has always prided itself on being your neighborhood bank and lived up to that reputation by actively supporting community programs, from neighborhood causes to schools and business associations. It is our highest priority that this tradition continues.

In fact, we champion the same kind of programs right now through our own PNC Foundation. Our efforts to build educational opportunities and promote community growth include our Grow Up Great program. This 10-year, $100 million investment works to actively improve school readiness in children through the first five years of their lives. We consider that an important investment in the future.

We consider our commitment to customer satisfaction an important investment to our clients' business and to our own. It's this philosophy that contributed to PNC being ranked Highest in Customer Satisfaction with Small Business Banking according to the J.D. Power and Associates 2006 Small Business Banking Satisfaction Study^{SM*}

For now, we ask that YNB customers continue to bank at the same branches, with the same accounts and ATM cards they've always had. The upcoming merger of Yardville National Bank and PNC presents many possibilities for our customers and for the community, so stay tuned for more exciting news. In the meantime, we're delighted to introduce ourselves. And we're looking forward to a bright future. Together.
