VALIDUS EXCHANGE OFFER CAN CLOSE BY END OF JUNE; IPC-MAX SIGNIFICANTLY OVERSTATES TIME ADVANTAGE TO CLOSING
Validus Offer Provides 12.5% Premium to IPC's Current Market Price
RiskMetrics Recommendation AGAINST Inferior Max Transaction
Correctly Focuses on Maximizing IPC Shareholder Value

Hamilton, Bermuda June 10, 2009 Validus Holdings, Ltd. (Validus) (NYSE: VR) today responded to multiple inaccurate and misleading statements recently issued by IPC Holdings, Ltd. (IPC) (NASDAQ: IPCR) and Max Capital Group Ltd. (Max).

While Max and IPC persist in making misleading characterizations about the timing to a Validus closing, they cannot change the facts: Validus has a clear path to deliver the superior economics of its offer to IPC shareholders in a timely manner. If IPC shareholders vote down the proposed Max amalgamation, Validus has three alternatives on the table:

1. An Exchange Offer that can be closed within days of its June 26th expiration date if the conditions to the Exchange Offer are satisfied, with or without the cooperation of IPC's Board;
2. An Amalgamation Agreement that can be consummated within as few as 45 days after a no vote on the proposed Max amalgamation if IPC's Board does the right thing to maximize shareholder value and signs the Amalgamation Agreement; and
3. The Scheme of Arrangement, which can proceed with or without the cooperation of IPC's current Board. Following a rejection of the proposed Max amalgamation, with sufficient shareholder support, Validus will pursue a Scheme of Arrangement to complete a transaction in a timely manner by filing a new application with the Supreme Court of Bermuda.

Separately, Validus believes that IPC's comments today on the RiskMetrics report are part of a continuing attempt to divert IPC shareholders' attention from what is important, namely that Validus' offer provides superior market value when compared with the proposed Max amalgamation. Validus' superior offer provides a 12.5% premium to IPC shareholders based on yesterday's closing prices for Validus and IPC, including $3.75 in cash. In addition, Validus noted the following:

1. Statements by IPC and Max that the dividends provided under the Max transaction should be added to the transaction value are inconsistent with basic principles of corporate finance. The dividends proposed to be paid in the Max transaction are essentially just returning IPC shareholders their own money. In contrast, the $3.75 in cash provided under Validus' offer delivers real value to IPC shareholders.

2. IPC and Max continue to use outdated December 31, 2008 book value figures in their analyses and ignore purchase accounting adjustments required under GAAP.
3. IPC's complaint that RiskMetrics' analysis did not include projected book value growth for IPC is baseless. Max has stated in its own business plan that it will reduce IPC's business and it is wholly speculative where the combined IPC-Max would derive future profits from remaining excess capital, if any, particularly given Max's recent record of underwriting losses.

Vote AGAINST Proposed Max Amalgamation

IPC's annual general meeting is only 2 days away. Validus urges IPC shareholders to follow RiskMetrics' recommendation and to preserve their right to receive Validus' superior offer by voting AGAINST the proposed Max amalgamation. Validus urges IPC shareholders to vote on the GOLD proxy card TODAY. Shareholders who have previously voted on IPC's white proxy card are urged to revoke or change that vote by contacting Georgeson Inc. toll-free at (888) 274-5119 (banks and brokers should call (212) 440-9800), or email validusIPC@georgeson.com.
