Prospect Capital Files Preliminary Proxy Statement With SEC in Opposition to Ares/Allied Merger as Part of Enhanced Bid for Allied Capital

NEW YORK (Market Wire) February 1, 2010 Prospect Capital Corporation (NASDAQ: PSEC, Prospect) on Friday January 29, 2010 filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a preliminary proxy statement in opposition to the proposed merger between Allied Capital Corporation (Allied) and Ares Capital Corporation (Ares) in furtherance of Prospect s increased proposal to acquire Allied made on January 26, 2010.

We believe that our increased merger proposal should not only provide superior value to Allied shareholders, when compared to the Ares proposal, but also should provide significant value to Prospect shareholders, said John F. Barry III, Chairman and CEO of Prospect. In our view, the credit markets have improved significantly since October when Allied agreed to merge with Ares. We believe the significant improvement in the credit markets likely increases the value of the Allied portfolio since October and makes Allied asset sales and debt repayments more feasible. The strong GDP numbers released on January 29 further support our belief that there may be smoother sailing ahead for Allied s portfolio companies.

We also learned from the Ares/Allied amended preliminary proxy statement/prospectus filed on January 26, 2010 that, from September 30, 2009 to January 15, 2010, Allied has paid down $389 million of secured debt, significantly reducing the principal payments of Allied debt now required in 2010, compared to our previous estimates. continued Mr. Barry. We also now understand from these materials that, as of January 15, 2010, Allied had on hand approximately $185 million of cash, money market and similar securities. These significant debt paydowns, and cash and equivalents on hand, disclosed just six days ago, significantly reduce the pro forma leverage of a Prospect-Allied combination. In addition, the sale of collateral management agreements associated with Allied s portfolio company Callidus, announced after January 15, 2010, may result in an even greater current cash buildup at Allied. In our view, these factors make Allied a more attractive purchase for Prospect than before.

We believe our pending increased merger proposal, if consummated, will deliver significant benefits to both Prospect and Allied shareholders, including potential upside through Allied s equity positions in a strengthening economy, increased diversification across more than 130 portfolio companies, and amortization of certain fixed costs across a greater asset base, continued Mr. Barry.

We are disappointed that, to date, the Allied Board of Directors has not responded to our increased merger proposal. However, we hope for a constructive response and the opportunity to roll up our sleeves and commence serious discussions with Allied with respect to Prospect s increased merger proposal, which we believe will create significant value for both Allied and Prospect shareholders, concluded Mr. Barry.
