Set forth below is a copy of an internet communication distributed to certain customers of Laidlaw Transit Services on February 9, 2007.

As one of our most important customers, I wanted to inform you personally about the proposed acquisition of Laidlaw by FirstGroup, which was announced February 9, 2007.

Today's announcement is exciting because it means good things for Laidlaw, for our employees and for our customers.

We can continue to invest in systems and technology that will benefit the industry as a whole.

And, we can now spread the cost of those investments over a larger number of vehicles

That means that by combining the strengths of the two organizations, we will be in a better position to compete on a low cost basis against the many competitors we face locally, regionally and nationally, as well as, continue to meet customer demands for improved services.

As a valued customer, it's important that you understand that we are committed to providing the same great service you've always received.

As we work on customer bids, please be assured that Laidlaw remains excited to work with you on your transportation needs and compete aggressively for your business.

While today we have just announced this transaction, we have many hurdles to pass. The merger transaction is subject to a number of shareholder and regulatory approvals and until the deal closes, you'll see no change in our business as we continue to operate as a separate and independent company.

As one of our customers, you may hear from the federal antitrust authorities (either the DOJ or FTC) in connection with our routine pre-merger notification filing. If they contact you, they will be primarily interested in gathering facts about the business and competitive dynamics, rather than taking a position. Their goal is to learn enough about the industry to assess whether the proposed transaction is good or bad for consumers from a competition standpoint. We believe the transaction will be good for both Laidlaw and its customers and will not adversely affect competition, especially given the intense competition we face in the marketplace today and the fact that our customers always have the option of taking their business away from us and back in-house. We hope that you will support the deal when and if the DOJ/FTC does call you. Thanks for your help.

We'll keep you updated as developments arise. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.
