Ball Corporation Announces Debt Offering In Connection with Acquisition of Schmalbach-Lubeca AG

BROOMFIELD, Colo., Nov. 27, 2002--Ball Corporation [NYSE:BLL] announced today that in connection with its announced acquisition of Schmalbach-Lubeca AG it has commenced an offering of senior notes, in the principal amount of $200 million, that will have a maturity of 10 years. The offering is being made in the United States only to qualified institutional buyers pursuant to Rule 144A under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and potentially to certain persons in offshore transactions in reliance on Regulation S under the Securities Act. The offering is expected to close the week of December 16, 2002. In addition to the Schmalbach acquisition, proceeds will be used for general corporate purposes.

The senior notes being offered have not been registered under the Securities Act and may not be offered or sold in the United States absent registration or an applicable exemption from registration requirements.

Ball Corporation is one of the world's leading suppliers of metal and plastic packaging to the beverage and food industries. The company also owns Ball Aerospace & Technologies Corp.

Forward-Looking Statements

The information in this news release contains "forward-looking" statements. Actual results or outcomes may differ materially from those expressed or implied. As time passes, the relevance and accuracy of forward-looking statements contained in this release may change. The company currently does not intend to update any particular forward-looking statement except, as it deems necessary at quarterly or annual release of earnings. Please refer to the Form 10-Q filed by Ball Corporation on Nov. 14, 2002, for a summary of key risk factors that could affect actual results or outcomes. Factors that might affect the packaging segment or business of the company are: fluctuation in consumer and customer demand; competitive packaging material availability, pricing and substitution; the weather; fruit, vegetable and fishing yields; company and industry productive capacity and competitive activity; lack of productivity improvement or production cost reductions; regulatory action or laws, the proposed German mandatory deposit or other restrictive packaging legislation such as recycling laws; availability and cost of raw materials, energy and transportation; the ability or inability to pass on to customers changes in these costs, particularly resin, steel and aluminum; pricing and ability or inability to sell scrap; and international business risks (including foreign exchange rates) particularly in the United States, Europe and in developing countries such as China and Brazil. Factors that may affect the aerospace segment or business are: funding, authorization, and availability of government contracts; and technical uncertainty associated with aerospace segment contracts. Factors that could affect the company as a whole include those listed plus: successful and unsuccessful acquisitions, joint ventures or divestitures and the integration activities associated therewith including the integration and operation of the business of Schmalbach-Lubeca AG; the inability to purchase the company's common stock; regulatory action or laws including those related to corporate governance and financial reporting, regulations and standards, business consolidation investment costs and the net realizable value of assets associated with the company's activities; goodwill impairment; changes in generally accepted accounting principles or their interpretation; litigation; antitrust, intellectual property, consumer and other issues; strikes; boycotts; interest rates and level of company debt; terrorist activities, war or catastrophic events; and U.S. and foreign economic conditions.
